The Companionate Monkey
Mr. Tunney's Ideals
Better Miracles

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright 1927 by Star Company

MISS EMILY HOWLAND celebrates her one hundredth birthday, at Sherwood, a little village in New York State.

Engaged in educational work for eighty years, she was a teacher long before the country heard of Abraham Lincoln, or dreamed of a civil war.

In youth and old age Miss Howland has set a good example. She worked to abolish physical slavery for negroes, and political slavery for women, when she was young. And now, celebrating her one hundredth birthday, she is full of hope for the future, and of optimism concerning the present. Young girls today are good girls, she says, and the world is progressing toward higher, better ideals.

Such a woman as Miss Emily Howland should live for ever.

Mr. Haldeman Julius, a Kansas publisher of books, approves his young daughter's experiment in "companionate marriage." The girl, eighteen, will marry a twenty-year-old boy, the two "will continue living their lives after marriage, as they lived previously, until they determine whether they are entirely suited to each other." Until then they won't live together, at least not in the same house.

Exactly what the plan is seems uncertain. But other things are certain, including these.

Until they live together they cannot possibly know whether they are suited to each other or not.

Companionate marriage is as old as the human race and as old as the monkey race. All the monkeys live in companionate marriage, free to quit at any time and they like it.

It took human beings thousands of centuries to establish marriage—a device by which Providence and women, co-operating, are gradually teaching men to be decent.

It's a slow process, but that is no reason for getting discouraged and going back to old monkey days and ways.

President Coolidge told Mr. Tunney that he looked more like a moving picture actor than a fighter. The President, perhaps, likes a gorilla better than he does some fighters.

Tunney looked like a fighter in France, wearing the Marines' uniform, while some other prize fighters were hiding under the bed or in safe camps at home, teaching soldiers.

Mr. Tunney, who is in the [illegible] reserve, tells the youth of the [illegible] that the great things

PRESIDENT OF MEXICO SENT $50,000 TO HELP SOVIET PLOT IN EAST

By John Page

Washington, Nov. 21.—Mexican money for the propagation of Russia's Red Doctrine has been spent lavishly by President Calles not only in his own country and in the territory of his Central American neighbors, as shown by the Hearst papers in preceding articles of this series, but in Russia itself and China.

Orders drawn by the Mexican Executive on his Treasury Department and published by the American elsewhere in fac-simile today prove the world wide scope of his pro-Bolshevist activities. Both orders were made payable to

Today's Mexican Expose

FURTHER PROOF of Mexico's efforts to promote Bolshevism not only in Mexico and Central America, but also in the East, is given in today's American.

IN today's article is shown how Calles spent lavishly, sending money to a secret envoy in Russia to promote the Bolshevistic cause both in Russia itself and in China.

FACSIMILES of Calles' orders for $150,000 on the national treasury are reproduced from the original orders, signed by Calles himself, in the possession of the Hearst newspapers.

THE order issued for money to be used in China was for the purpose of helping Russia organize a strong Red party in China, which, Calles hoped, would become all-powerful and add the enormous population of China to the proposed union of Communist countries.

COME, NOW, BE A GOOD FELLOW FOR CHRISTMAS

This is a pretty good world that we live in.

This is a pretty good country of ours. Our fellow men and our fellow women are pretty good fellows, generally speaking.

We get excited about taxes and fundamentalism and jazz and hootch. We argue and get red in the neck over questions of shattered sex morality and atheism; finance and scanty skirts; high cost of living and low standards of taste; football and fat-reducers; cigarettes and cinemas.

We slam our landlords and damn our politicians.

From under the wheels of automobiles we shriek anathema at reckless drivers; and from our motor cars we grumble at the awkwardness of dumbbell pedestrians.

But underneath — several inches inside our worldly covering, whether it be a policeman's blue tunic, a banker's sober grey jacket, a flapper's flimsy blouse or a matron's brooch-pinned basque — several inches beneath the veneer of worldly careers, we discover at least one time a year that there beats a heart.

'JURY TAMPERING' ENDS KEARNS-DEMPSEY CASE

Newark, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Plaintiff charges of attempted tampering with justice on the part of Jack Dempsey and Tex Rickard brought an end today to Jack Kearns' $335,333.33 court action against Dempsey.

Both sides agreed to ending the case by a voluntary non suit after Judge Runyon, presiding, had told the defense, who wanted the trial to go on, that the only alternative would be a mistrial.

Just before Judge Runyon issued his ultimatum the court was thrown into an uproar by Rickard, who resented a remark of Kearns' counsel that Rickard had boasted having the case "in the bag" that he called the lawyer a "contemptible liar" in open court.

The mistrial followed an attack made in open court by Atty. Arthur Sager, Kearns lawyer, who charged that the "sinister shadow" of Rickard had been cast over the court in an attempt to influence the jury.

Lynn Jail for Yule Rafflers

More than a score of bridge parties and entertainments arranged for between now and Thursday, the proceeds to go either to providing Thanksgiving dinners or Christmas charity for the poor, were stopped today by an edict of Mayor Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn.

Mayor Bauer in a letter to Police Chief Thomas M. Burches ordered the police to stop turkey drawings and raffles at those parties and arrest the sponsors.

Organizations affected include the Knights of Columbus, which have advertised a bridge and turkey raffle, the Fr. Mathew Total Abstinence Society, a Catholic organization, which has advertised 100 turkeys to be given away; the Eastern Improvement Association, non-sectarian, and the Metropolitan Club, advertising that 20 turkeys will be awarded.

The mayor's letter directed the chief also to arrest proprietors of halls who allow such raffles on their premises.

FOUR BURN TO DEATH WHEN TRAPPED BY FIRE IN CONCORD, N. H., HOME

Concord, N. H., Nov. 21.—Fire took the lives of a mother and three children today when the home of Charles Marshall in South Main street suddenly burst into flames.

A fourth child was saved when he was hurled through a window by his mother just before she met her death. Marshall had just left for work when the tragedy occurred.

The dead:
Mrs. Eda B. Marshall.
Ruth Adelaide, age eleven,
John William, age eight.
Robert Smith, age four.

The bodies of the mother and children were found on a bed in a blazing room when firemen reached the house.

Walter Marshall, age six, the rescued child, could not give a connected story of the tragedy.

"The floor got awful hot and mama screamed," was all he could say.

Walter was picked up in a dazed condition by neighbors.

Marshall, an employe of the State Prison, kissed his family goodbye, as was his custom, before he left home. His grief when he learned of the tragedy was pathetic.

So rapid was the spread of flame that in the brief seconds necessary for neighbors, living only 100 feet away, to reach the house, the structure was almost entirely enveloped in the rear.

Denver, Nov. 21 (A.P.)—Four strikers were killed and nearly a score were wounded early today when state police opened fire on several hundred strikers and their sympathizers who stormed the Columbine coal mine, thirty miles north of Denver. Six of the wounded may die.

Governor W. H. Adams later ordered National Guard troops to the scene and authorized Colonel Newton, State Adjutant-General, to invoke martial law should he see fit.

Governor Adams declared responsibility for the deaths rests squarely on the strikers themselves. He exonerated the police.

Strikers, however, blamed the "tool

TRIED AS SLAYER, WIFE WEARS MOURNING BAND

Fall River, Nov. 21.—Wearing a mourning band on her sleeve for the husband whom she is accused of murdering, Mrs. Gertrude F. Gibbons, a mother and widow at the age of twenty-three, today went on trial for her life.

Stylishly attired, but inconspicuous because of her small stature and girl-like figure, she sympathized the jurors who will decide her fate to the East Somerset farm where they viewed the well in which the body of Theodore R. Gibbons was found last May.

The jury was selected in less than two hours, only 20 of a venire of 160 prospective jurors being examined before the quota was filled.

The young widow sat just outside the rail of the bar enclosure and stirred nervously in her chair as the prospective jurors were questioned, rejected or selected.

Judge Hugo A. Dubuque, presiding at this special murder session of the Bristol County Superior Court, announced that he would not lock up the jury each night, explaining that Basilio Badillo, the Mexican Minister to Russia.

The larger sum, $100,000, was to be turned over to "Citizen Basil Livitnoff," designated by Calles as "secret agent of Mexico in Leningrad," for the carrying out of propaganda arrangements spoken of by Calles in a letter written by him to Minister Badillo. This letter was published by the Boston Evening American Saturday.

The smaller sum, $50,000, Minister Badillo was instructed to use for "propaganda expenses in favor of Mexico in China." In both instances, it will be noted from the text of the orders, the money passed through the Mexican Fiscal Agency in New York.

The Calles order in favor of "Comrade" Livitnoff follows: To the Citizen Minister of the Treasury.

Please direct the Citizen Treasurer General of the Nation to issue a pay warrant for the sum of $100,000 (One hundred thousand dollars) in favor of the Citizen Minister of Mexico in Russia, to be placed at the disposa' of Citizen Basil Livitnoff, secret agent of Mexico in Leningrad.

TREASURER WARY

The readers of the Boston Evening American will have noticed, by this time, that the Mexican Secretary of the Treasury, Alberto J. Pani, never signed the Treasury Department orders carrying out the wishes of President Calles in regard to the spending of Mexican money in anti-American measures or Bolshevist propaganda. Secretary Pani always evaded this responsibility, requiring his subordinates to sign the necessary orders. Senor Pani resigned his position as head of the Treasury Department last February. Pani's intimate friends attributed his resignation to long standing disagreement with Calles over the latter's reckless expenditures of treasury funds everywhere save at home, where they were most needed.

Early this year, and just prior to Pani's resignation from the Treasury Department, President Calles ordered him to have $50,000 telegraphed to the Mexican Fiscal Agent in New York for transfer to the Mexican Minister to Russia, "for propaganda expenses in favor of Mexico in China."

This was done just as the Chinese Nationalists were massing for the northward march on Shanghai, inspired largely by Russian Soviet agents who played skillfully on Chinese patriotism and just resentment against the world powers for injuries suffered in the past. The Russian dream was to paint the Chinese Nationalists a vivid Russian Red, aid them to conquer the whole of China and add four hundred million Chinese to the Bolshevist cohorts for the "world struggle" against capitalism.

President Calles participated in this dream and was willing to spend Mexican money to translate it into reality. His order on the Mexican Treasury Department to transfer money to Russia for this purpose follows:

To the Citizen Secretary of the Treasury and Public Credit.

You will please order the Citizen Treasurer General of the Nation to transfer by telegraph in care of the Financial Agent of Mexico in New York the sum of $50,000 (Fifty thousand dollars) to be delivered to Citizen Basilio Badillo, Minister of Mexico in Russia, for propaganda expenses in favor of Mexico in China.

The Hearst papers, as usual, have the original of this order, bearing the hand-written signature of President Calles. It was given to them by anti-Bolshevist employes of the Mexican Government.

This fifty thousand dollar gift was not the Mexican Executive's only contribution to the cause of unrest in China. He and members of his cabinet were present at the inaugural ceremonies of the Mexican Branch of the Chinese Kuo Min Tang in Mexico City, on Lopez Street, October 25, 1926.

This revolutionary organization was supported warmly by Calles and his subordinates from the first day it opened for business. Its agents spread rapidly over the Mexican Republic, soliciting and obtaining contributions to the Chinese revolutionary fund from merchants of that nationality everywhere. Frequently they found Chinese who were unsympathetic with their revolutionary ideals and unwilling to contribute to the Kuo Min Tang fund. Such were threatened with prompt expulsion from the country unless they came across. When it was found that Kuo Min Tang agents were making such threats with the knowledge and approval of Mexican officials, merchants and laundrymen fought with each other to get their names first on the lists of contributors.

(On Wednesday, the Boston Evening American and the Hearst papers will show the hand of Calles reaching over into England, meddling with the internal affairs of Great Britain during a recent critical period in her history.)

SAYS DAUGHTER HAS RIGHT IDEA IN MATRIMONY

Girard, Kan., Nov. 21 (I.N.S.)—Mrs. E. Haldeman-Julius, wife of the well-known publisher of this city, today looked forward "with delight" to the forthcoming marriage of her daughter, Josephine, 18, and Aubrey C. Roselle, 20.

The engagement was announced recently, and it was said at the time that the marriage will be "companionate."

"Josephine and Aubrey are going into this with all earnestness and with the full intention of making a lifelong success," Mrs. Haldeman-Julius said.

"One hesitates to use the term companionate marriage only because it is so often and wilfully misunderstood and apt to be confused in the public with trial marriage, which is the exact opposite.

MOTHER LAUDS IDEA.

"For the sake of all other young people who are ready to marry, but whose parents may be reluctant, to take what I feel is a fair attitude, neither Josephine and Aubrey, nor Mr. Haldeman-Julius and myself wish to avoid a term which we feel strongly expresses a sane and wholesome attitude for any marriage in which neither Josephine and Aubrey nor the financial responsibilities.

"Josephine is only a junior in High School and Aubrey is in his sophomore year. It will be at least five or six years before he will be ready to carry the full financial burden and Josephine can assume the full responsibilities of a home.

"It seems perfectly unreasonable

ONLY GHOSTS OF FAME CLING TO ADAMS HOUSE

By WIN BROOKS.

Familiar ghosts of the unfathomable past strolled through the darkened corridors of the old Adams House today.

The big doors, closed at last with a bolt shot home for all time, barred them not at all. For memories there is no barrier.

They passed not at the desk to register, for memories are not recorded in print, and in the dog-eared book that carries the signatures of a legion of the famous the last name has been written.

One by one, while time seemed to pause, they passed—big John L. Sullivan with his moustache and his swagger; a quiet, stern-faced man who is today the President; Edwin Booth, who had five minutes to spare before the bell in the Old Boston Theatre rang "curtain"; Denman Thompson, DeWolfe Hopper, Theodore Roosevelt.

GLAD HAND FOR ALL.

Elmer True still stood behind the desk and his right hand—the hand of greeting extended to countless Adams House guests for 38 years—rested upon a closed register.

If he looked up now and then with a smile it was, perhaps, because he thought he heard an old familiar greeting.

"Good morning, Mr. True." Calvin Coolidge strolls through to breakfast.

"Howdy, Elmer?" The brusque voice of John L., who is passing down to the bar, where he will hold say before a game in the billiard room.

Since 1899, Elmer E. True was clerk at the Adams House; chief clerk most of that period, until today

$300,000 FIRE, 20 ESCAPE AT NORTHAMPTON

Northampton, Nov. 21.—Two business blocks in Main and Kirkland streets were destroyed by fire early today, despite a heroic battle by ice-coated Northampton and Holyoke firemen.

The loss is estimated at above $300,000.

A score of firemen narrowly escaped death when a fall of the four-story brick Lambe building fronting on Main street and housing, among other concerns, Lambe's Department Store, swayed and then crashed in.

One of the firemen, Captain Malcolm, suffered an injury to his knee when he was hit by a section of the falling wall.

The Lambe Block housed the office of Judge H. P. Fields, under whom President Coolidge studied law after finishing college.

Also the building housed the dental parlors of Dr. John C. Allen, dentist for President Coolidge.

From this building the flames crossed an alley into the three-story brick building occupied by Quinn's furniture store.

Help was called from Holyoke and the apparatus made a record run of twelve minutes in covering the ten miles.

Handicapped by water-spray that froze on them in the temperature of but ten degrees above zero, the firemen labored valiantly to save the structures, but they did check further spread of the flames.

In the Lambe Building, on the first floor, in addition to the department store, were located the clothing shop of M. J. Keating, the men's furnishing store of Coffee & Burke and the drug store of Colburn & Graves. The upper floors were taken up with offices.

REMUS A COLD BLOOD SLAYER, STATE CHARGE

Cincinnati, Nov. 21.—George Remus was portrayed as "the deliberate, cold-blooded murderer" of his wife, Imogene, by Walter K. Sibbald, assistant prosecutor, in the opening statement of the State at the trial of Remus today.

Sibbald declared that "Remus and his gang" deliberately planned the slaying and that Remus, the former bootleg king, carried it out.

Sibbald revealed that George Klug, Remus' former chauffeur, would be a State witness.

It would be shown, said the assistant prosecutor, that on the night of October 5 last Remus was staying, intending to kill her. She was slain on the morning of October 6.

Judge Shook ruled today that each side in its opening address would be limited to two hours and a plain statement of the facts to be given in evidence, without emotion or argument.

Remus made a motion in court today, reiterating his demand that James J. Davis, United States Secretary of Labor, be subpoenaed with records having to do with efforts to deport Remus.

This motion had been denied by Judge Chester R. Shook, who said the records in Washington were open to everyone.

Remus charged that the prosecution had served subpoenas on Mr. and Mrs. A. Gust Bruck of Covington, Ky. He produced the original subpoenas and astonished court and counsel on both sides.

A vigorous debate developed between Prosecutor Charles P. Taft and Remus, Taft questioning the manner in which Remus obtained the state's subpoenas.

Captain Ingalls Dies

The last steaming whistle sounded for Capt. Loring C. Ingal's today. Skipper for a quarter century of Eastern Steamship line boats, Capt. Ingalls died at his home in Holbrook.

BREWSTER ASKS $25,000,000 SHIP SUBSIDY

Washington, Nov. 21 (A.P.)—A government subsidy of $25,000,000 a year to private shippers to construct and to operate a merchant marine was urged upon President Coolidge today, by Governor Brewster of Maine, who said the development of a merchant marine was this country's only hope of continuing its prosperity.

He suggested a subsidy similar to that proposed by President Harding, but which was disapproved by Congress.

Governor Brewster declared it was ridiculous to think the government would spend $300,000,000 on its navy, but not one-tenth as much for a merchant marine, which he termed the second line of defense.

In presenting his ideas to Mr. Coolidge, the Governor said he was reporting sentiment at the recent national conference of Governors at which, in addition to himself, the Governors of Kansas, Iowa, Minnesota and Utah also went on record as approving the subsidy.

ANOTHER WARM WAVE ON THE WAY TO BOSTON

Originating in Wyoming through the night, a brief spell of warm weather today spread slowly eastward across the country, and is officially predicted to dull the cutting edge of Winter here over the coming 24 hours.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Mostly cloudy and warmer tonight and Tuesday; fresh southerly winds.

Summon 25 in Somerville

Twenty-five storekeepers will be summoned into Somerville District Court charged with violating the Sunday law.

'DADDY, COME HOME!'

MRS. TRACY AND MURIEL

Heartbroken over the disappearance of her husband, Mrs. Henry J. Tracy of Hillside avenue, Everett, has asked the Boston Evening American to find him for the sake of the three children, one of whom is sick and continually calls for him. He left Friday for a job in Jamaica Plain, and the next day, the wife says, he sent a little money and a note, saying he would not return.

GEORGE REMUS ROMOLA REMUS CHARLES ELSTON

FIRST PHOTO OF EX-BOOTLEG KING AND GIRL IN COURT

This picture was snapped in court at Cincinnati after ex-millionaire bootleg king's dramatic clash with Charles P. Taft 2d, prosecutor at death trial and son of former President, present Chief Justice William Howard Taft. Romola is Remus' daughter by his first wife. He is on trial for the murder of his second wife, Imogene, who he charges betrayed him to Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., ex-dry agent. Charles Elston is counsel for Remus at the trial, though Remus himself has conducted the case thus far in picking a jury.

3 CHILDREN AND MOTHER DIE IN FIRE

timber to a second story window in front, but when he shattered the window pane, flames burst out and fanned him off the long stick, hurling him to the ground.

Then the entire front of the house was veiled in flame and smoke.

Mrs. McHard said she believes the fire must have started from an explosion because flame was shooting from the rear windows less than five minutes after she had stood on her own rear piazza and had looked over at the Marshall home, where then all was calm and quiet.

"My family and I were at breakfast," said Mrs. McHard, "when I heard three screams by a woman looking out the kitchen window. I saw fire coming out of Marshall's. They were even coming out the back door.

HOUSE A FURNACE.

"I called my brother Burton and Mr. Greenleaf and we ran out. We have no ladder, but we got a long 2x4 timber and Burton asked us if we could raise him up if he clung to the end.

"We could not get through the back door because it was like a furnace, and the back windows were all afire. So we ran to the front and Burton wound his legs around the 2x4, locked his hands over the end, and Mr. Greenleaf and I raised the end up to the second floor window.

"It didn't seem as if he had hardly broken the window when he was blown down by a blast of fire that shot out all over him.

"Then we heard someone crying out back and we found little Walter, with his hair all burned, crouching under an apple tree. I picked him up and carried him into the house until his aunts, Alice and Stella Marshall of South Main street, came for him.

Walter said his mother threw him out a window. He said he was asleep upstairs, where they were all in bed, and that his mother came over when they were all frightened, and kissed him. Then he found himself out in the cold in the orchard, frightened and burned.

HAD NO EXPLOSIVES.

Greenleaf, the boarder, said that when he talked with the tragedy-smitten father, Marshall said he could not understand the suddenness of the fire, because there was nothing explosive in the house.

The bereaved father said he had made the kitchen fire in his usual custom today, had eaten breakfast and then shut off the fire and had left for work.

The bodies were found in the ruins almost within touch of each other, but none was badly burned, indicating that the victims had been smothered to death.

Neighbors criticised the lack of high pressure water and Mrs. McHard said her own garden hose would send a stronger and higher stream than if the hose the firemen were compelled to use at the fire hydrants.

Gas Rate Hearing Dec. 7

The Public Utilities Department today announced that on Wednesday, December 7, at 10:30 a. m., it will hear protests against the new schedule of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, which it is proposed to put into effect the first of the year.

Move Death Chair as Concrete Floor Is Being Laid

For the first time since it was installed in State Prison, the electric chair in which 20 men have met death, was moved from the execution chamber in the death house today.

The chair was moved to permit the laying of a concrete floor instead of the wooden surface over which condemned men from Luigi Storti to Bartolomeo Vanzetti have taken their last walk.

'WELL' JURY AT SCENE OF CRIME

the former Massachusetts custom has been modified because of so many murder trials in recent years. Later, if circumstances necessitate it, he will lock them up, he added.

COURT OPENS WITH PRAYER.

Because it was the opening of a session, court opened with prayer by Rev. James M. Quinn, pastor of St. Mary's Cathedral, and after the jury was chosen, Judge Dubuque added a scriptural touch by suggesting the application of the Golden Rule on the part of this, and all, juries.

James Bedrick, one of the jurors and a grocer, after having been selected, asked to be excused because of the Thanksgiving trade. The court said it was too late, but he would shorten each day's session for Bedrick's convenience.

"If your store was robbed, you would want justice to take its course" he said. "Now it is up to you to serve the community as you would be served."

"Behold you, if the evidence warranted, bring in a verdict punishable by death!" Mrs. Gibbons heard each prospective juror asked by the judge.

SECOND SNYDER CASE.

"I wouldn't sentence a woman," was the reply of one of the venire. James White, a Fall River teamster. He was quickly challenged by the government and excused.

Mrs. Gibbons is the first woman to stand trial for a capital crime in Bristol County in 13 years. Her reputed sweetheart, Antone da Silvia, who was indicted with her, is not being tried at this time, for last week he was removed to Bridgewater State Hospital for the Insane for observation.

Carl Buffington of Swansea, a clerk, the tenth juror selected, was named foreman by Judge Dubuque. The other jurors are James Bedrick, grocer, of Fall River; William Ward, laborer, Fall River; Daniel J. Bradley, engineer, Taunton; John J. Dawney, cabinetmaker, Freetown; Harry H. Croome, poultryman, Rehoboth; Frank L. Davis, machinist, Fairhaven; Edmond Richer, merchant, New Bedford, Leonard F. Pero, mill operative, Taunton; Charles A. McAvoy, visitor for the Public Welfare Department, New Bedford; George Najarian, Jr., Rehoboth; George A. Beauseiell, insurance agent, North Attleboro.

POLICE KILL 4 IN I. W. W. GUN BATTLE

speed cops." The strike committee declared martial law would incite rioting.

Among the wounded is the mother of 16 children.

The fatalities were the first since the I. W. W. called a strike in the Colorado coal fields on October 13.

Warnings had been issued by officials of the Rocky Mountain Fuel Company, operator of the mine, that any attempt by the strikers to invade the property would be met by gunfire.

500 DEFY ORDERS.

One of those injured was a woman dressed in men's clothing.

Nearly 500 strikers gathered outside the mine about 5 a. m. They were met at the gates by Louis N. Scherf, chief of the State Law Enforcement Department, and a dozen of his men.

The strikers were commanded to halt, but surged through the entrance and engaged in hand-to-hand conflict with the guards. Guns were wielded by the police, but they were overwhelmed. The strikers used rocks, clubs and knives.

Scherf rallied his officers and they withdrew to take up a new position. As the strikers approached again Scherf warned them to stop and fired two shots over their heads. The advance was continued and the State officers leveled their guns directly into the ranks of the invaders and opened fire. After nearly a score had dropped, the strikers fled through the gates.

I. W. W. ISSUES CALL.

Governor Adams revived the State law enforcement department several weeks ago to combat with picketing. Several national guard airplanes have been used for scouting, cooperating with the law enforcement officers.

State officials have repeatedly declared picketing was unlawful and many I. W. W. leaders are held in jail in southern Colorado for ignoring warnings to cease demonstrations which would intimidate miners desiring to work. The strike has been declared illegal by the State Industrial Commission.

Today's demonstration followed a nation-wide call issued through I. W. W. publications for all "foot loose" members to assemble in Colorado.

Several State officers also were taken to hospitals suffering from painful injuries. They sustained broken shoulders from being struck with clubs. Sam Lee, a policemen lost a finger.

Physicians said six strikers being treated probably would die. Thirteen others were expected to survive.

Labor Asks Coolidge to End Soft Coal Strike

Washington, Nov. 21 (I.N.S.)—President Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America today asked the President to summon a conference of bituminous operators and miners to stop the strike, which has been in progress since April 1.

The delegation also requested the President to recommend in his annual message that Congress conduct an investigation into an "alleged conspiracy of large railroad corporations to depress the price of soft coal for fuel."

President Coolidge promised to take up the question of a joint wage conference with the Labor Department, but he gave no further assurances that the government would aid the labor leaders.

TWO YOUTHS HELD AS SUSPECTS IN ROBBERY

Thomas Field, 19, and Thomas McDonough, 20, giving their address as New York, were arrested by Sergeant Donovan and Patrolman Concannon of the Fields Corner station early today and are being held as suspects.

The police found the youths had more than 500 dresses in their possession and a check is being made of recent store robberies. The youths came to Dorchester a week ago and hired a room. The police, acting on a tip, were hiding in the room early today when they returned to their room.

PLANS DRASTIC RULES FOR JOB AGENCIES

Drastic regulations for private employment agencies are proposed by Representative Peter J. Fitzgerald of Dorchester in a bill filed at the State House.

All such agencies would be placed under the State Department of Labor and Industries and licensed at a fee ranging from $25 to $100 according to the population of the city or town in which the agency is located.

In addition, in cities of more than 500,000 population, a bond of $1,000 or $2,000 would be required.

When you go to a party do your feet want to stay home?

All dressed in your smartest things and pretty as a magazine cover! But suppose your hat squeezed your head as your shoes do your feet... suppose your frock stabbed and burned... suppose your gloves mashed your fingers together. You'd surely prefer staying home.

Shoes ought to be as comfortable as the rest of your apparel. They can be as feminine as lace, as flattering as candlelight, and yet comfortable enough so your feet want to go with you instead of begging to stay home in bedroom slippers. Can be? Why, they are. Come try on a pair of Coward's new fall models and be as vain as you please about the lovely way your feet and ankles look. We are vain about the way they'll feel.

HOME BREWERS WIN BATTLE

Home brew proponents today won a victory in an opinion handed down by the United States Circuit of Appeals.

"It was the intent of Congress," the opinion said in part, "to protect our dwelling houses against unreasonable search and seizure by the act of November 23, 1921.

"A cellar is a part of a dwelling house and no warrant to search under the national prohibition act could be issued except on affidavits that it was being used for the sale of liquor or manufacture on a commercial scale.

"The fact that a still, intoxicating liquors and articles of manufacture were found in the search would not cure the inefficiency of such an affidavit."

The decision was on an appeal by Peter Nahrjan of Rhode Island, following conviction after federal officers raided his cellar.

TELLS OF BRIBES AT RUM TRIAL

Salem, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Albert H. Reynolds of Newburyport, a defendant in the Salisbury Beach liquor case, described the alleged bribing of Captain Harry F. Burnham of the Plum Island Coast Guard station while testifying as a government witness here today. Reynolds, who has pleaded guilty, said that Roel S. Getchell, another defendant and a former Salisbury selectman, gave him money on seven occasions in 1922 and 1923 to share with Burnham. These sums, Reynolds said, totalled about $440. Anthony Curmingham, another defendant who has turned government witness, testified that he knew of 50 kegs of liquor landed at Salisbury beach during 1922 and 1923.

MARIE PREVOST GRANTED DIVORCE FROM HARLAN

Los Angeles, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Marie Prevost, film star, today was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from Kenneth Harlan, picture actor. The action came after the case had been under advisement for several days.

Mis Prevost charged neglect and desertion.

ADAMS HOUSE HAS ONLY ITS 'GHOSTS'

when the Adams House itself is relegated to those memories with which it was so rich.

"Nearly 40 years I've stood here and watched them come and go," said True. "Famous and near famous and names destined forever to remain obscure.

"No more."

About the dimly lighted lobby a man paced restlessly, his eyes cast upon the floor. "Bill" Shine had made his last rounds, had checked through his last baggage from the old hostelry.

The Adams House had 37 years of "Bill" Shine's life. That is only a little more than half of the years he has lived.

BILL'S OLD FRIENDS.

"Bill" was the Adams House porter. Never a better. And he was "Bill" to every notable who ever lifted a glass in the bar that is no more.

"This was a wonderful institution," he reminisces. "We had virtually all of the best people in the country whenever they came to Boston. One of my happiest recollections of of Murray Crane. Everybody in the hotel loved him.

"Bill" Shine knew Calvin Coolidge intimately for 17 years.

"Probably the best 'tipper' the house ever had was Jack Mason, the actor.

"Mason used to stop here with his wife, Marion, and it was always a near-riot in those days among the bellhops to see who would get his service. There was no 'Front' then. When a guest wanted service he pressed a button and the room number registered on a board in the lobby.

LAVISH WITH TIPS.

"The boys used to sit and watch that board like hawks. If the number of Mason's room showed up there'd be a scramble for the stairway and the elevators. First in the room got the job and the generous tip sure to follow.

"Mason and his wife wanted service and they got it. And they paid well for it."

The Masons occupied the fourth-floor suite where Calvin Coolidge lived when he was Governor.

SCORNED TREATS OF FAME.

"I remember old John L. very well," "Bill" continued. "He used to come strolling in with his retinue to play billiards or step down to the bar. We had a famous bar."

In the 34 years that Frank Lynch was head of the Adams House bellboys, he was never once late on the job and the job required his presence at 8 a. m. every other day.

'I had plenty of chance to drink with the famous. I never drank."

GOOD FELLOWS ENROLL FOR CHRISTMAS

And we discover that the beatings of that heart quicken to the touch of a child.

As the sad-sweet season of Christmas draws near we feel a little the days of childhood coming back. In all the joy of Christmas there is a tinge of sadness for the days that will never really come again for us except as we are reborn in the children of today and tomorrow.

More than at any other time we come close to throwing off for a moment the "shades of the prison house" that Wordsworth spoke of, which close in slowly upon the growing child and gradually shut us off from the early remembrances of immortality.

The Christmas season, the season of sentiment, of generosity, of rosy cheeks and tense energy, is almost upon us. We grow, at the magnitude of our uncompleted tasks. Family, friends, business associates, club mates, office workers, all are carefully listed . . .

But wait!

Someone is knocking at the door.

A timid knock,

A knock that falters and that will lose heart and fade away into the unknown . . .

One, born this Christmas Eve over nineteen hundred years ago, never failed to hear the millions of timid knockings of those frail hands.

That Child, in whose devotion the whole ceremony of free-handed giving has grown up, spoke repeatedly of the little ones whom He loved so well.

WILL YOU HELP?

It is a child who is knocking at your door.

"Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not," he said.

And again: "Whatsoever ye do unto the least of these my little ones, ye do also unto me."

And yet again: "Feed my lambs."

Will you take to your bosom a little child this Christmas? Will you feed and clothe a child in memory of the child that once you were, if not in tribute to Him who spoke the language of children?

Will you care for a little family on Christmas Day? Perhaps a mother on a bed of pain, surrounded by little ones who will otherwise know only a Christmas Day of cold and hunger and sadness?

Will you bring joy into little hearts that will too soon grow aw-y from the years of childhood without their birthright of simple busine-s?

Will you be a Good Fellw?

The Boston Evening American wishes to translate for kindhearted readers of this newspaper the timid knockings of hundreds of little hands. Your heart is warm, but you do not know where to reach out and take to your bosom some unfortunate little bread.

The Boston Evening American will tell you. This newspaper will give to you, to YOU personally, a letter that you can follow up. You can go and see how real is the need in the little home. YOU can buy the little stockings and toys and perhaps a chicken and some candy and oranges that are going to make a real Christmas—perhaps the only Christmas that that little family has known for years and that will be remembered for years.

SEND IN YOUR NAME

You will not be giving to someone unknown to you, or to someone about whose actual needs there may be some doubt. You will see the conditions with your own eyes, and you will act upon your own well-considered judgment.

But you must send us your name in order that we can bring to you the little child who is knocking at your door.

Send us your name, and give us an idea of what you are willing to undertake and we will send you a letter from a family whose simple needs you can supply.

Write today to the Goodfellow Editor of the Boston Evening American, Winthrop square, Boston, saying that you will be happy to provide for a family of five or four or two or six that you will supply a Christmas dinner, or warm clothing, or shoes.

Tell us what you can do. Perhaps you can care for only one. All right. That's possibly a great deal. The important thing is that unless YOU who are reading this undertake to do something, no matter how little, some child in Greater Boston is going to go cold or hungry or unhappy in this Christmas season of the glorious Year of Our Lord 1927 in this beautiful United States of America.

Write today.

COMPANIONATE COUPLE TO WED

to them and to us that they should be asked to wait these five or six years."

Mrs. Haldeman-Julius said the "companionate" marriage is entered into "with the full consent of the parents of both."

The wedding is scheduled for Thanksgiving Day.

Commenting on the coming marriage she let's father said:

"I and my wife believe parents have no right to deny their children what they physically are ready for because of idotic conventions.

"After their marriage Josephine's husband will have an incentive to get ahead economically that the average man does not have. The ordinary single man is working toward nothing definite. Marriage lies in the future for him and it is easy to drift and procrastinate preparing for it financially. Aubrey will have a definite stimulus.

"The possibility of finding the marriage an unhappy one was admitted by Mr. Haldeman-Julius.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Myopians to Hunt as Guests of Harford Hounds at Monkton, Md.; the Isaac R. Thomases to Spend Season in London

EVEN THE WELL ESTABLISHED SPORT OF FOX HUNTING INSTITUTES AN innovation at times. And certainly for the Myopians to pack off their horses and their dogs and their august selves down to Maryland is an innovation of infinite possibilities. By very special invitation of the Harford Hounds at Monkton in Maryland is this pilgrimage undertaken and even such a distance is as nothing to these sportsmen of the Myopia who adore thoroughbred sports for the sports sake. Of course, James M. Appleton, M. F. H., takes the southward way with his pack and his steeds. No such important journey of Myopians could be thought of were this astute master not on hand to direct things.

THEN ALSO THE PICTURE WOULD NOT BE COMPLETE WITHOUT SUCH enthusiastic members of the Hunt as Bayard Tuckerman, Augustus F. Goodwin, William Stuart Forbes, Miss Alice Thorndike, the Frederick Ayers, Miss Mary Curtis and the Charles Fanning Ayers. Late in November, on or about the 28th, there is a general gataway and the Myopians will be for some days hunting with the Harford and doing all those pleasant accompaniments in the way of hunt, teas, breakfasts, luncheons and balls that inevitably follow the pursuit of Master Reynard.

ADDED TO VERY SPIRITED SPORT OVER SPLENDID NATURAL HUNTING country the Harford potentates have arranged for their guests a round of entertainment to fill every moment from sunup almost to sunup without cessation. The Harford Hunt has many claims to fame. It's one of those fine old established hunts way down South in the sections where, without exception, the local gentry have ridden to hounds almost since they left their cradles. The very peak of their fame lies in the fact that Mrs. William Goadby Loew is master of fox hounds.

THE HARFORD IS ONE OF THE HALF DOZEN HUNTS IN THE COUNTRY having a woman to serve in that post. Mrs. Loew is admittedly a headliner, as familiar a personage in the stirring and brilliant social picture of New York of Winters as in the Summertime existence of Newport. A familiar figure in Park avenue and in Bellevue avenue, as master of the Harford Hunt she shares glory with the other top-notch sportswoman, Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, who is a famous woman master of hounds of a very famous hunt, that at Aiken.

MR. AND MRS. ISAAC RAND THOMAS OF BOSTON AND THE NORTH SHORE are of the world's elect that move with the seasons through the world's pleasant places. They are aboard steamship on the way to the Old World. Beside Mr. and Mrs. Thomas the party includes two junior debutantes of the family, Miss Bettina Thomas and Miss Rosamond Lombard. Mrs. James J. Storrow's name appears on the same passenger list, which also has those of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. White. Adogether, it is a very interesting set of Bostonians on the Ile de France for the current crossing.

THE ADVENT IN NEWPORT OF THE FORMER MISS MABEL GERRY and her spouse, F. Saxham Drury, had nothing whatever to do with the social side of existence. Rather had it a business aspect for this notable Newporter and her English husband were in the city by the sea merely to inspect "Sea Verge" with a view to disposing of it so 'tis said. The magnificent Bellevue avenue estate of the late Commodore Elbridge T. Gerry, bequeathed to his daughter, Mabel, now Mrs. Drury, may pass to new owners according to present plans. The Drurys put up at the Hotel Viking on their first Newport stay since their arrival from London where they spent the Summer.

NEWPORT IS IN THAT SHUTTERED AND LEAFLESS STATE SO distinctly out of season and vividly in contrast to the brilliant aspect so familiar to Mrs. Drury when as Miss Gerry she was a New port social leader. Since the wedding of the Gerry heiress to the London glass of fashion they have found London much to their liking as a residence. Perhaps London will in the future know the Drurys more intimately than will Newport or New York. Life in London claims certain Bostonians who each year spend less and less time on this side and so become more closely affiliated with the British capital. Mrs. William Lindsey is one such. She has returned to her London residence in Brooke street after an American and continental journey

MRS. ALAN SCAIFE
The former Miss Sarah Mellon was married with much pomp and ceremony at Pittsburgh a few days ago.

Meanwhile, the beautiful Leslie Lindsey Chapel of Emmanuel Church in Boston remains an exquisite reminder of the family's generous instincts and love of the beautiful.

FAR AND AWAY THE MOST ELABORATELY DONE WEDDING anywhere was the celebrations of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Scaife down in Pittsburgh. As a favorite niece of Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, and as a charming bride, the former Miss Sarah Mellon's nuptials would be interesting even though not elaborate. The Mellon Scaife alliance, however, was magnificently done almost with royal splendor. Mrs. Scaife visited in Boston when she was Miss Mellon.

in life are "religion, loyalty, duty."

A good list. Youth will say to itself that a good "uppercut" will carry you farther on the road to prosperity, in our civilization, than any amount of religion, loyalty and duty.

Be loyal to your fellow man, do your duty, be religious and you'll be happy. Knock your fellow man out and you'll be rich.

The Rev. Dr. Straton says we might now have miracles as wonderful as those of the olden times. He has seen a woman "virtually dead already" brought back to life by prayer.

Modern miracles of the scientific kind are more wonderful than old miracles.

Men go in submarines under the water and in flying machines above it, instead of walking on it.

They prevent disease by common sense and cure it with inoculation, saving millions of lives instead of resurrecting a few. They talk and send music through the air without wires.

The new miracles are at least as spectacular as the old, and much more useful. Vaccination is worth more than all the miraculous cures of all the religions.

When the virtuous fall out, the wicked smile. Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, who wants prohibition enforced because it is in the Constitution, also wants all negroes to vote exactly as they please, because that is in the Constitution.

ACQUITTED OF GEDZIUM CASE CONTEMPT

Ormsby L. Court of Somerville, associate of Attorney William E. Weeks, former counsel for Jerry Gedzium, convicted murderer, in Middlesex Superior Court today was discharged on a charge of contempt by Judge David F. Dillon.

Judge Dillon said he could not believe the testimony of Jeter J. Kay of Hancock street, Cambridge. It was in connection with an affidavit by Kay that Court was arrested during the hearing of the second new trial motion in behalf of Gedzium.

Attorney John F. Daly, counsel for Court, declared if his client were found guilty any reputable lawyer attempting to protect his client's interests, could be held in a similar case.

District Attorney Bushnell made a strong plea for conviction for "the protection of courts and jurors."

The first witness was Kay, alleged in the affidavit signed by Court that Juror Algernon N. Dunbar of Hancock street, Cambridge, his tenant, had declared he was responsible for Gedzium being found guilty and had believed him guilty before the trial.

The witness repeated previous testimony regarding the affidavit, and was succeeded by Dunbar, who denied the statements credited to him.

Judge Dillon said no one was disposed to question the integrity or honesty of Juror Dunbar. "If we accept Dunbar's testimony as true, Kay is lying," he said. "If Kay is lying I believe he is falsifying both as to statements Dunbar made to him and statements I am prepared to find he made to Weeks and Court."

SEES NEED OF JURY SERVICE FOR WOMEN

Only women are qualified to understand young people's perplexities and women, therefore, should serve on juries in cases where young people are affected, Mrs. Leslie H. Cutler of Needham declared today at the legislative luncheon of the Massachusetts Civic League in the Twentieth Century Club.

"Youth is woman's responsibility today; there is no escaping it," said Mrs. Cutler, who is president of the Massachusetts Council of Women.

"No matter what else may be in a woman's life, this is the one great thing that counts for more than anything else. Jury service for women will help her meet the problem more understandingly than ever before.

"Today the home must not be an eighteenth century one; it must be modern and twentieth century. The world has crossed the threshold of the home and only as women answer the challenge will the new world be born.

"Jury service would show some women the problem and temptations that young people are on against, and there would be better understanding of young people's perplexities.

"Mothers cannot close their eyes and shut the door to modern life."

She also said the council would conduct an exhaustive study into the existing conditions protecting women and children in industry. She said the legislative conference voted to support the milk bill, wages for prisoners' bill which was also to apply to women prisoners at Sherborn, and any bills with increasing opportunities for school children.

Thaw Smashes Things in Evelyn's New Club

New York, Nov. 21 (I.N.S.).—Harry K. Thaw returned to Broadway early today with a thud that was far from being either dull or sickening. He visited the new night club of his former wife, Evelyn Nesbit, entertained ten chorus girls, kicked over his $30 check, smashed a few glasses and departed.

"Oh, Harry was just on one of his parties," explained Evelyn after the tumult and the shouting had died. "It'll broke a few glasses and a girl was scratched by flying glass, but everything was settled all right."

REVERE WOMAN OVERCOME; FIRE SWEEPS INTO HOUSE

Fire, discovered on a back piazza by Mrs. J. W. Barry of Victoria street, Revere, today swept into the house when Mrs. Barry fought the blaze with a broom. Sparks, wafted through an open window, set the kitchen afire, causing a $500 loss. Mrs. Barry was slightly overcome by smoke.

FILM MEN GOING IN FOR MYSTERY MELODRAMAS

BY LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

Los Angeles, Nov. 21.

WITH the naive delight of a child with a new toy, the movies are going in strong for mystery melodramas. It took a long time to discover that plays like "The Cat and the Canary" and "The Gorilla" could be filmed and still retain their elements of mystery. But now that the camera has proved effective, mystery melodramas are as popular as underworld tales.

This craze has hit Paramount with a surprising bang. Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton have been handed "Partners in Crime," an original thriller patterned along these lines.

This pair have in the past confined their talents to teaming as as comedians. I suppose comedy is not absolutely barred in "Partners in Crime," but if it is something like "The Racket," with Wallace Beery as popular mystery play, as P. B. Schulberg said, then the dramatic scenes will far outnumber the comedy situations.

MOORE'S IDEAL PART.

Frank Lloyd will direct and the details are being kept secret. Of course, it wouldn't be a mystery if everyone knew the story. Some years ago David Wark Griffith made a successful mystery melodrama called "One Exciting Night."

But the time apparently wasn't ripe, for most folk thought D. W. was degrading his talents and regretted that he had made such a low film.

When the "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?" company returns from its jaunt to New York, there will be a new leading man. Tom Moore, who should be right at home in a story with a good Irish name like Kelly, signed a contract with Universal to play opposite Bessie Love, the feminine charmer of Kelly.

Frank Joyce, who was Tom's brother-in-law years ago, when Alice Joyce was Mrs. Moore, put the signature on the dotted line. He is managing Tom at the moment. Bessie Love returns next week, when the picture will go into production.

KEPT BUSY IN MOVIES.

Since George Sidney decided to give up the stage in favor of motion pictures he hasn't had an idle day. His next address will be Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, where he can be located as one of the important characters in "Treiawney of the Wells."

If you have followed this column (and if you haven't, please don't tell me; I am sensitive, you know), "Treiawney of the Wells" is Norma Shearer's next picture.

It's going to be one of her most interesting ones, they think at M.-G.-M.

The chance of David Wark Griffith's making "Sunny" with Constance Talmadge is extremely remote, although it had been planned that Miss Talmadge would make this picture on her return from New York.

It seems the story doesn't appeal particularly to Mr. Griffith, who has asked that he be permitted to substitute some other story for his next for United Artists.

LADY IVEAGH SEATED AS 7TH WOMAN IN COMMONS

London, Nov. 21 (I.N.S.).—The House of Commons now has seven women members. Lady Iveagh, who was elected to Commons in the recent Hoxton by-election, a Tory, took her seat today, making the seventh. Lady Iveagh, the novelist and historian, issued an open letter urging her defeat on the ground the Conservatives are "following a policy which will plunge England into war."

KEEP YOUR STOMACH YOUNG AND SWEET

Every bite of food you eat MUST be digested, and the waste matter eliminated. That's sure. If your stomach is sluggish and old, from the excessive acids which keep eating away the gastric juices, you must dissolve them, or you never will be free from indigestion, sour risings, bloating and drowsiness after you eat.

Get a package of Pape's Diapepsin from your nearest drug store and chew one of the tablets after meals. Instantly the distress is relieved, it dissolves the acids, sweetens the stomach and you will have an appetite again like you had when a child.

All drug stores have Pape's Diapepsin. More than 5 million packages are used a year.

Is here again, and Groesberg, 434 Washington Street, is ready to equip you with the latest and smartest in felt hats. Your really smart felt provides just the finishing touch for your street or afternoon ensemble. And they are perfect for Fall and Winter wear, as bad weather has little effect on them. Small cutouts in little leaf designs, solid metal embroidery that has the appearance of being painted on, ribbon trimmed or tassled, you will find your choice for $2.98 at Groesberg's.

Hold the Mirror

Closer, Anne—and see those tiny lines that will develop into ugly wrinkles. I recommend two creams by Lesquendieu of Paris. A Cleansing Cream that liquifies instantly, and digs deep after exfoliating dust. Leaves your skin softer, whiter and ready to be the utmost good from its sister miracle worker, Lesquendieu's Egyptian Massage Cream. This nourishes and rebuilds the tissues, strengthens muscles, discourages wrinkles and flabbiness. Sold by Meyer Jonasson & Co., Tremont and Boylston Sts. In combination, $3.75. Singly, the Massage Cream, is $2, the Cleansing Cream $1.75. Treasures, Anne.

A Favorite Theme

Of mine for weeks and weeks has been "Holeproof," so it's no wonder you find me still urging you to go to Talbot's, 355 Washington St., for your Christmas stocking supply. As I stood at the counter the other day I heard one woman tell the salesgirl that she was making her semi-annual stocking purchases for the whole family from the Holeproof supply. Since the new Lucile colors have come out the anxious buyers will be crowded four and five deep around the counter by Christmas time so I would advise you to go early when the clerks have more leisure and can give you the service and attention it is impossible to give in the rush season. You know the excellent Holeproof hose, Anne, by this time, in the ladies' stocking for $1, $1.50 and $1.95; and in the men's hose besides the EX toe which Holeproof has made famous is the newest feature, or toe guard, a reinforcement on the outside of the foot where the wear comes against the small toe. Mail orders are pouring in, so get yours in early and avoid the last hour uncertainty.

An Artistic Creation!

One of the most beautifully designed lamps in the whole Spaulding-Moss Colonial Gift Shop—famous for artistry and quality, is the table lamp specially featured this week. It is of sturdy metal, plated in gold or silver color, and stands 25 inches high. The shade is of selected paper parchment 18 inches in diameter, with a wide band of colorful decorations. Truly, Anne, a marvelous buy, complete with two-light fixture and cord, for $13.75. And Spaulding-Moss will deliver them anywhere in New England, prepaid, with specially careful attention given to mail orders. Don't forget that Spaulding-Moss also has an exclusive assortment of artistic Christmas and greeting cards, and it would be well to make an early selection. Other attractive gifts in the form of unusual book-ends, wrought iron magazine racks, delicately colored; smoking sets, fire screens, lovely Italian cigarette boxes, door-stops and hosts of others to intrigue the early Christmas shopper. Spaulding-Moss, you know, is located at 42-46 Franklin Street, at the corner of Hawley, right in the heart of the shopping district.

Something New in the World

Are the Sub-Galleries, at Chandler & Co., under the regular Spanish Galleries I've been telling you about, Anne. These galleries will be devoted exclusively to hats, and they are just what you might expect of Chandler's for quality and smartness. The newest are imported, with metal and ribbon inlays in all different colors; also metal with sequin trimmings, metal embroidered over taffeta, Bengaline with small mirror trimmings, Bengaline and satin trimmed with smart ornaments, satins trimmed with rhinestones, and a few homespun felts, with grosgrain ribbon trimming. Any one of these for $5.00. For $7.50 is a Mallery French fur felt, with a glisteriened ostrich feather smartly drooping to touch the cheek. Others in black satin, felt and grosgrain combinations. Altogether, Anne, hats that any woman would be proud to own. They come in large and small head sizes to suit all types, from the sleek "bobber" to the woman with long hair or the hard-to-fit head size. At Chandler's, corner of Tremont and West Streets, in the Sub-Galleries.

Woman's Intuition

Almost invariably guides her to the Nina Products. If, after experimenting for years, you have still failed to find what your skin needs, then let me introduce you to the Nina Products, exquisite French preparations for beautifying the skin. The Nina White Rose Cream ($3.50) is the perfect cleansing cream, penetrating the pores and releasing grit and dust without leaving a film of grease to catch more dust. Then there's the special Nina Geranium Cream that eliminates the harassing crow's feet and wrinkles and forms the perfect powder base. It's a day cream—or a night cream—or may be the only cream you use, in fact. It costs $3.50, but like all the rest of the Nina preparations, you use so little at a time that one jar lasts for months. A specially trained attendant in Filene's Beauty Shop will give you a trial treatment, without charge, before you buy. There are necessary astringents, lotions, powders and rouge. Each of these products is sold separately or they may be had packed in a kit convenient for traveling, for $15.50 complete, only in the Beauty Balcony of Filene's stores, corner Summer and Washington Streets.

An Opportunity, Anne,

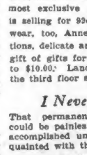
To choose wonderful Christmas gifts at a saving. Landfield's are having a special remodeling sale and are selling all silk chiffon hose, regular $2.00 stockings, for $1.49, $2.00 service hose for $1.35 and chiffon to the welt, for $1.29, with a free repairing service thrown in. A special lot of chiffon and service hose, made for one of New York's most exclusive shops, Landfield is selling for 99c. a pair! Underwear, too, Anne. Original creations, delicate and individual, the gift of gifts for Christmas. $4.98 to $10.00. Landfield is now on the third floor at 2 Winter St.

Beauty at a Saving

Is what Miss Gorney offers you, Anne, for during the month of November you may get expert beauty treatment—facials, finger waves, permanents, manicures, shampoos, manicures, in fact the whole book of beauty secrets lavished upon you at a 20 per cent. discount. Hattie Gorney is a well known and recognized expert in beauty culture, and all work is done in private booths under her personal supervision. Meet me at 11 tomorrow in her adorable salon and we'll get beautified past all knowing. Up on the third floor at 2 Winter St., Anne, and don't keep me waiting.

I Never Knew

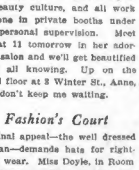
That permanent hair removal could be painlessly and perfectly accomplished until I became acquainted with the Tricho System for removing hair from face, neck, arms and under arms. Now I tell all my friends about it. Tricho follows nature's method in creating permanent baldness; and when the hair is killed, absolutely and finally, as in the Tricho System, it can never grow again. If you suffer from superfluous hair, and realize what a social and business drawback it is, telephone Hancock 3333 for a personal consultation. Their attractive salon is at 100 Boylston St., second floor.



Fashion's Court

Of final appeal—the well dressed woman—demands hats for right-away wear. Miss Doyle, in Room 615, Lawrence Bldg., 36 West St., supplies them at a price that seems almost too little for such loveliness. Imagine the newest shapes and shades in hand made felt hats for $3.50, fresh from the workrooms.

Velvet hats of smartest lines and quality, regular $7.50 values, all reduced to $5.00. An outstanding collection of hats, featuring smart youthful lines for the matron, in large head sizes, and the touch of personality which makes Miss Doyle's hats so individually You.



It Will Be a Great Day

When all the family and relatives gather on Thanksgiving Day. For everyone, that is, but mother. No matter how much we all try to help, she must do just a certain amount of the essential work and most of the time is spent on her feet. No wonder they ache and burn so that she can't enjoy the day at all. Just think what a pair of Dr. Saul's fitted-to-measure shoes would mean to her now! Only $8.00, and such relief from arch strain and aching muscles. Dr Saul's scientific foot treatment too, to ease those corns and callouses and bring those poor tired feet feel young again. Send mother up to Dr Allan P. Saul my competent chiropodist-podiatrist, 3rd floor, 110 Tremont Street, and make it a day of real Thanksgiving for relief from suffering.

Oh, What a Shame

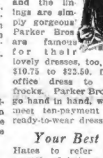
Anne, you've pulled a thread in your lovely new chiffon stockings! But never mind; let me take you up to Winifred Townhill's, Room 518, 38 Chauncy Street. She repairs runs, pulled and drawn threads by her own secret method that restores and re-knits the threads so that the finished work is absolutely invisible. French chiffon, sheer lace and net hosiery, silk and woolen sweaters, knitted suits and golf hose, it matters not to Miss Townhill. Prices range as low as 15c and upwards.

Margery's Fur Coat

Was rather a sight until she took it to Parker Bros., 3rd floor of the New Studio Bldg., 110 Tremont St., where they do such expert repairing and remodeling. $35 to $50 for remaking and relining any fur garment, and the linings are simply gorgeous! Parker Bros. are famous for their lovely dresses, too, ranging from $10.75 to $22.50, from a simple office dress to dainty dance frocks. Parker Bros. are budget-go hand in hand, with an easy to meet ten-payment plan on ready-to-wear dresses and coats.

Your Best Friend

Hates to refer to that growth of hair on cheek, upper lip, or chin, and I wouldn't mention it if I didn't know that it can be quickly and permanently erased by Miss Gorney's Sparkes, electric needle specialist, at room 602, 120 Tremont Street. Miss Sparkes' work is endorsed and recommended by leading physicians, her method is new, safe, sure and lasting, and her rates reasonable. Miss Sparkes is an adept in the art of shaping eyebrows, too. She will gladly give you a consultation free of charge if you will call to see her or phone Hancock 7592.



Here's News, Anne!

A new shop, one we've never heard of before, is having its opening today, on the third floor at 26 West St., with new importations from New York and Paris. Odette is the name, and they are opening with lovely imported flowers and jewelry, scarfs, hosiery, dresses and odd novelties.

Trotty loves gowns ranging from $15 to $75, and some real $65 values, for the opening week only, are $45. Continuing through next Saturday. Fine quality hosiery, chiffon and service weights for $1.00.

The Hour Is Late

But do take just a moment more and cleanse your skin with Virosol. It takes away all traces of dust, powder and rouge, leaving your face clear and refreshed, and ready for your night's sleep. Get Virosol tonic every crevice and pore with a bit of cotton, until the skin tingles with renewed blood circulation. It tightens those tiny relaxed muscles, where lines appear so quickly if neglected, too. Get Virosol at the toilet goods counter of Shepard Stores, 30 Winter St.

COLLEGE WIDOW STARS DOLORES

"The College Widow" at the Metropolitan is one of those things which has for its basis a thoroughly impossible but highly delightful situation. Dolores Costello, real as the daughter of a college president, learns that her father is due to get "fired" from good old Atwood—or maybe it's Colton—unless a football team is produced. The result is, quite naturally, that Dolores recruits an entire squad by courting each member individually. When William discovers her wholesale and very very innocent amours that gentleman registers indignation after the best manner of Connie Towle and almost starts an outbreak of gridiron heroics. In the end, of course, boy keeps his job and love conquers all.

On the stage a varied performance centers around the popular Jens Rodemich and his band. The Ada Kaufman dancing girls open things with a bang. After them comes Jerome Mann, a juvenile dancer of distinction. Delores and Eddy do an unconventional flowers dance that is far above the usual run of such things, while a dancing soloist, Irmanette, shows how easy it is to play "ecardas" and black attem at the same time. A pair of comedy acrobats, Herman and Canon, also delighted the patrons.

Big Bugs Guests of Texas Guinan and She Lost Out

New York, Nov. 21 (I.N.S.)—Texas Guinan, nationally known "night club queen," today declared war because municipal license of the new Texas Guinan club was revoked.

The club was closed Sunday morning on the charge that it had violated the curfew law a week before by remaining open after 3 a. m.

"I did not get a air tearing," explained Texas. "Anyhow it was a holiday night, with the Equity ball and the Notre Dame-Army and Yale-Princeton football games.

"Ronie Rockne, Red Grange, the Atterburys and lots of others were there.

RING FILM AT KEITH-ALBEE

From the training quarters of a top-notch prize fighter to the gay and intriguing lights of Broadway goes Vera Reynolds in "The Main Event" at the Keith Albee Boston.

In this picture which was directed by William K. Howard Vera Reynolds is used a bits to show what the influence of a woman can do to decrease or increase the grit of a fighter in the ring. The inside life of a boxer and the mode of life he is forced to live is brought out excellently in "The Main Event."

Rudolph Schildkraut takes the part of the father to Robert Armstrong, a comic fighter. Julia Faye plays opposite Charles Delaney and Vera Reynolds in the triangle of love.

The vaudeville bill is lead by the Homer Lind Revue, a well-staged musical act, featuring Ursuline Norris, prima donna and soprano.

ENOUGH WHISKEY IN U. S. TO LAST 5 YEARS

Washington, Nov. 21 (A.P.)—The prohibition bureau has decided it does not need additional legislation covering medicinal liquor making Commissioner Doran said withdrawals have dropped from 2,000,000 to 1,500,000 gallons annually. There is enough medicinal liquor for five years, he said.

'SALLY IN OUR ALLEY' ON SCREENS AT TWIN HOUSES

"Sally in Our Alley," a story of tenements, mansions, tradespeople and society matrons, is the feature picture now playing at the Modern and Beacon. In it Shirley Mason is supported by a cast that includes Richard Arlen, Alec B. Francis and Florence Turner.

The associate picture, "Jaws of Steel," in which Rin-Tin-Tin is featured, is a story of love and high adventure on the desert.

The Vitaphone features include John Charles Thomas, the famous baritone; "Reb Spikes" and his Dixie Orchestra, and the Merle Twins, syncopating singers.

SCENT BRITISH PLOT IN CASE OF WILLINGTON

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR.

Washington, Nov. 21.—Such strong influence is being exerted on the administration to extend the honors hitherto reserved for royalty to the Governor-General of Canada when he visits here next month that the initial decision of the Department of State not to provide a gilt grinnge of state by the President to the Canadian Legation may be reversed at the eleventh hour.

The British Ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, has not joined hands with Mr. Massey, the Canadian Minister, in earnest representations to the Department of State to disregard the precedent.

The sentiment, it seems has been invoked to obtain for Viscount Willington honors which he would not receive anywhere in Great Britain.

The eagerness of the British and Canadian diplomatists for this gilt grimage is explained on the ground that for the United States to set such a precedent, might go far towards any movement in Canada looking to a further democratizing of the Canadian government.

If Viscount Willington is given these honors, what is there to prevent the allocation to the Canadian government of a sufficient part of the British navy to upset all the calculations based upon the ratio fixed at the Washington conference?

At that conference principle of absolute equality as between the British navy and the American navy was admitted by the British and the Japanese, although the principle applied only to capital ships.

There are so many potentialities in this test case that interest in the decision of the Department of State is manifested in every embassy and legation in the Federal city and every government house throughout the British Empire.

Booth Sees Albert

Brussels, Nov. 21 (A.P.)—King Albert today received General Bramwell Booth, head of the Salvation army, who has been visiting on the continent. General Booth was presented to His Majesty by the British Ambassador.

WILL, AFTER 32 YEARS, AIDS 3 COLLEGES

The 32-year-old will of Miss Emmeline Cussing of Boston, who died in June, 1895, was disposed of today in Suffolk court, when a decree was ordered by Judge Pierce for disposition of the bequests, the value of which has doubled since the will was made.

Bequests, totaling originally $18,-533, were "for the use and benefit of colored people and none other."

Because the sum at time of filing was deemed insufficient to meet demands of the excessed provisions, the money was placed in trust, mounting to more than $36,-000.

By agreement with the executors, represented by Archibald H. Grimpky of Washington, and with approval of the court, the decree was ordered.

The beneficiaries, though not named in the will, were cited today today as the Atlanta University of Atlanta, Ga., Fisk University of Nashville, Tenn., and the Calhoun Colored School of Calhoun, Ala.

The three beneficiaries will receive more than $10,000 each, with the balance reverting to attorney fees, court expenses and executors' fees.

ANTI-FASCISTI RIOTER FINED $30 IN NEWTON

"I was driven out of Italy by the Fascisti and now these blackshirters are coming here to try and run this country. They won't while I can help it."

After this declaration on the witness stand in Newton district court today, where he was on trial for assault and battery on two men at a Fascisti organization meeting in Columbia Hall, Nonantium, John Scussel, 44, of Needham, was fined $30 by Judge Brown. He paid. Scussel was arrested when police quelled a disturbance that resulted when Italians gathered to form a Fascist branch. According to the police, the branch was organized after the commotion.

ACID Intoxication

"It Gets Seven In Ten Past 40"

When your back hurts, your head aches, your stomach sours, the morning looks gloomy and you hardly know what is the matter, it is more than likely that you are a victim of the great American complaint—"Acid Intoxication"—an excess of acid in the system. Lack of balance in the diet and eating too much rich food stores up uric acid in the body to torture and weaken you with kidney trouble, dizzy spells, rheumatic twinges and high blood pressure.

All you really need to relieve these distressing troubles is a thorough flushing out of the body poisons in a natural way. There is one mild, easy, ideal method which has been found highly effective by thousands of people for years. You simply take a tablespoonful of JAD SALTS in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia. By helping to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys and neutralize acids in the system, the source of irritation is often entirely done away with and bladder disorders relieved as well. JAD SALTS is inexpensive, absolutely harmless, makes a delightful, sparkling lithia-water drink and may be obtained in four ounce size from any druggist,

"The Shining Pathway.."

LITHE and eager bodies—gay and smiling faces—youth marches forward blithely on the Shining Pathway of childhood. For never before have childhood's needs been so carefully charted—so that all may share in health and happiness.

Mothers know today that their curious, active little bodies use just twice as much energy as a grownup's. They need plenty of good, simple food to replenish that amazing out-pouring of vitality.

And startling though it may be, more than one-fourth of that energy comes from bread alone!

The food authorities of six universities helped produce White Rose Bread—to make it more nourishing, richer in the elements that growing bodies need.

White Rose Bread is made with plenty of milk. Almost twice as much as the average loaf! There's enough sugar to bring out all the delicious "nutty" flavor of the wheat. Then it is given the long, slow bake which makes White Rose Bread so firm and fine in texture. Temptingly like home-made!

Get this satisfying loaf from your grocer. He gets it fresh from the sunny White Rose Bakery twice every day.

HUB PATRIOTS PROTEST HUGHES' BOOK

Love's Ten Commandments All Shattered Now

"Say, you couldn't slip me a fiver, could you?"

READ THIS FIRST

SALLY JEROME, 20, is the mainstay of her family. Her father had deserted his wife and his children. Besides Sally there are the twins, BEAU and MILLIE, aged 21. Millie, the family beauty, is always losing jobs when her employers "get gay" with her.

Sally works at home in the mornings, for her mother is a semi-invalid. In the afternoons she works for MR. PEEVEY, an elderly eccentric, who does a small mail-order business in Chauncy street. TED SLOAN, who lives with his mother in the flat below the Jerome flat in Hemenway street, is a "dancing fool," and Sally has become very friendly with him. But when he tries to make love to her she pulls him up short. Sally sees a handsome man in the elevator. She learns that he is John Nye, with an office across the hall. Sally smashes a bottle of Mr. Peevey's milk in the corridor, and young Nye happens along and goes to buy another bottle. Ted proposes to Sally, but she promises her mother not to wed him. Sally tells Millie that Nye needs a stenographer. Mabel Wilmot gives a party at the Jerome flat.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER XII.

IT was Sally's habit to set up at 6 o'clock every morning of the year. Winter and Summer. It gave her a full hour to herself before it was time to put the coffee on to boil and to cut the bread for breakfast.

That hour was the pleasantest time of the whole day for her. She took a scarcely bath, did her "dipsetting" exercises, manicured her nails, brushed her hair until it shone like blue-black satin, and set her room to rights.

It believed in her—that hushed hour before the rest of the family was up and stirring. Before the day with its endless jobs for Mrs. Jerome and the twins, for Mr. Peevey, engulfed her.

But on the morning after Mabel's party Sally woke up long before 6 o'clock.

She woke with the memory of a dream still hazy in her mind—a dream about John Nye.

"Now, why under the sun should I be dreaming about him?" Sally asked herself.

She had dreamt that she was in a restaurant, all alone at a little table. Next to her were two other people, a man and a woman. In her dream she had turned her head to see who they were, and had seen John Nye and Millie, balling hands across the little table where they sat. As she watched them they had leaned toward each other, and John Nye had kissed Millie squarely on the mouth.

After that point, Sally could remember nothing more of the dream. But there was a very real feeling of jealousy in her heart as she lay there in the dawn coolness, thinking about it.

It seemed to her that she and could see John Nye's dark, good looking face as he had leaned towards Millie in the dream. And it came to her, in a hideous flash that the reason she was jealous was because she was in love with John Nye—it had taken Ted Loomis to show her the truth that she had been hiding from herself so long.

She had dreamt that she was in a

HARVARD FOOTBALL BEGINS TO LOOK UP

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN — MONDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1927

THREE BIG FEATURES SATURDAY

Outstanding Events Were Harvard's Great Stand; Minnesota's Win, Tufts' Wind Up

By BILL GRIMES.

Harvard's stand against the powerful Yale team, the victory over Michigan by Minnesota and Tufts winding up its first undefeated season, were the outstanding gridiron features last Saturday.

Captain Merle Pratt's team offered its best exhibition of the season against Yale. The Crimson went into the game as short ends. Yale had swept through the Army Dartmouth and Princeton and was regarded as one of the best teams the New Haven institution had been represented by in recent years.

According to many of the experts Harvard was to be swamped. The Yale line was admittedly too strong for the Crimson and many expressed the opinion that Harvard would be unable to stop the Blues running and overhead attack.

Naturally, the Princeton game took confidence out of Yale and it was evident soon after the first kick off that Yale was not the Yale that had rolled its way through some of the best teams in the East. But on the other hand, Coach Horween sent an inspired seven in against Yale. At no time this season has Harvard displayed the fight it offered against Yale.

YALE GOT SOME BREAKS.

Although Harvard went down to a 14to0 defeat, the team made a wonderful stand against Eli Yale. Both of Yale's touchdowns resulted from long runs. Johnnie Garvey raced away for a 55-yard dash for the first score and Bill Hammersley raced 83 yards for the final touchdown. Luck played almost as an important part as ability in runs such as pulled off by Garvey and Hammersley and the breaks were with Yale on these runs.

One thing the Harvard-Yale game demonstrated was that those who predicted that the loss of Bruce Caldwell robbed Yale of its best ground gainer knew little of Yale's real running attack.

When Caldwell was at No. 3 in the Yale backfield he was the star. The former. He was featured all over the country as the greatest ground gainer in the East. But when Caldwell was declared ineligible, Johnnie Garvey was sent in at No. 3 and immediately he became the big hero at Yale. Then came Bill Hammersley, Goodwine and Lamme and they proved to be every bit as effective as Caldwell and Garvey.

All of Yale's running plays are built around its No. 3 back and so well around is the Yale team on its running assignment that it matters little whether Bruce Caldwell or Otto Grow is in the backfield.

Bill Hammersley weighs about 150 pounds. Yet he was able to gain consistently against Dartmouth, Army, Princeton and Harvard. There is only one answer to such a condition, and that is, Yale has a real offense.

TUFTS' SPLENDID SEASON.

Although the Tufts goal line was crossed for the third time this season, the Brown and Blue swamped Massachusetts Agricultural College and is one of the few teams in the country which has gone through untied and undefeated. True, Tufts did not play one of the so-called big colleges and there is no reason why it should. However, Coach Simpson's boys met some good teams, many of which have larger enrollments than the Medford institution.

Tufts is most deserving of its great success. The team knows football and took advantage of every opportunity offered. Coach Simpson has done a wonderful job with the Jumbos and the success of his team stamps him as one of the finest coaches in the East.

The Connecticut Aggies gave Coach Leo Daley of Boston College a chance to see his second and third string men in action. Boston College is now ready for Holy Cross and despite the setbacks the Heights team has received this season, next Saturday's contest at Braves Field will furnish as many thrills as offered in recent years.

HARVARD'S BEST WEAPON WAS WELL CONCEALED ONE

ONE OF THE MYSTERIES OF THE HARVARD-YALE BATTLE

Was the Crimson's failure to use its lateral or backward pass more. No team in the country had developed this play to such an extent as Horween's men. This Guarnaccia to French pass was a ground gainer every time it was used. Yale was completely fooled on the toss. Note in this picture how the Yale man has nailed Guarnaccia, the passer. Note also how French has started a sweep around Yale's left end with Brown and Pratt dashing over to take out Garvey. Scott, the Yale end, has gone right by in play. Why it wasn't used more may be one of the secrets of Harvard's secret practice.

HORWEEN DRAWS GREAT FRESHMAN MATERIAL

Harvard's football pendulum has started to swing back.

The rough sailing for the Crimson teams has come to a close and Harvard seems destined to recall back the days of Percy Haughton when the 1928 football team gets going.

With only a few veterans [illegible] varsity Arnold Horween did [illegible] any "chores" when he [illegible] name to a contract for [illegible]

[illegible] last year to serve a Crimson jersey in the line. George Owen, Captain Pickney of the frosh is a whale of a defensive back and is of varsity caliber right now. A fighting [illegible] comes up in the person of Jimmy Gilligan from Newton.

To balance up the Crimson line, [illegible] Henry Hilden, the Boston Latin man, for center and Ed Latimer, a whale of a [illegible] of the 1921 eleven [illegible] varsity grade. [illegible] pair of [illegible] Werner will [illegible] Bradley Pratt's position [illegible] as a good looking [illegible] big boy is a rough customer [illegible] bound to make a good for backfield berth.

THREE IN RACE FOR HARVARD CAPTAINCY

No less than nine players are eligible for the 1928 football captaincy at Harvard by virtue of being Juniors and letter men, but the fight for leadership will dwindle down to a three cornered struggle between Art French, Joe Crosby and Dave Guarnaccia, all halfbacks, according to present indications. The other eligibles, Ralph Turner, John Parkinson, Forrester Clark, Jim Combs and John Prior, all linemen, will probably receive a few scattered votes on the first ballot, but it is unlikely that any of them will be among the first three who will be considered on the second ballot, according to Harvard custom.

Art French, according to present consensus, will finally emerge the victory over Crosby and Guarnaccia but all three leading candidates are strong and either Crosby or Guarnaccia may eventually win out.

Crosby, had he been eligible to play last season, would undoubtedly have been captain of the 1927 team and may believe that he will lead the eleven next year, while others think that Guarnaccia will be the choice because of his great passing and speed.

The election will not be held for two weeks, at least, and the dope may be all upset in the meanwhile but just now French, Crosby or Guarnaccia are far in the lead in the race for captaincy.

60,000 Pay Last Tribute to 'Tiger' Flowers

Atlanta, Nov. 21 (I.N.S.).—Tiger Flowers, negro prize fighter and deacon in his church, will be buried with elaborate funeral services this afternoon at the city auditorium, a place usually reserved for such events as grand opera and expositions.

Flowers' own church, the Butler Street Methodist Episcopal, in which he served as a deacon, was much too small to hold the great crowds that wanted to pay homage to the "Tiger," so the city offered the use of the auditorium.

"Playing the leading role calls for a perfect voice condition at all times. The throat must always be clear to avoid the embarrassment of coughing during the performance. To have this and at the same time enjoy smoking was a considerable problem for me for many years. I saw so many men smoking Lucky Strikes that I tried them. I am very happy I did. In addition to their most delightful flavor, Lucky Strikes cause me no throat irritation and my voice is always in shape for my work on the stage."

Winter Sports Now on Harvard Calendar

Winter sports are now claiming the Harvard football players. After a short rest of a week, the entire squad will find itself scattered among the various indoor sports to keep them in trim throughout the Winter.

The team will not meet again until next month when they will assemble for the varsity football picture and the election of the 1928 captain.

Jamaica Joe Crosby and Art French, from Winchester, are the leading contenders for Charley Pratt's berth. Other candidates include Tim Clark, Dave Guarnaccia, Jack Parkins and Gordon Brown. The final ballot will probably eliminate many of these, leaving the berth open to either Crosby or French.

From the personal feeling among the varsity lettermen, Crosby will be the next Harvard captain. French is one of the most popular boys at Cambridge today, and has been a consistent ground-gainer all season for the Crimson. He is of sturdier build than Art French, who has yet to remain through a whole game.

Coach Ed Wachter's basketball team will be augmented shortly by the acquisition of Wild Jim Coombs, Sam Burns and Wally Harper. Arthur French is probably the best hoop player in college but the Winchester youth has scurried at the court game for the past two years.

Tim Clark, Harvard's only four-sport athlete, will shortly report to Coach Joe Stubbs of the hockey team. Long and awkward, Clark is no marvel to watch on skates, but he has shown a willingness for the ice game and Stubbs is planning to use him as a sparé defense man. Joe Morrill will also join Clark and will fill in at his berth at goal.

Winter Track has claimed four of the varsity players. Howie Burns, Art French and Yon Mason are all sprinters of note, while Dave Guarnaccia is being groomed for the 880 by Coach Eddie Farrell. Tom Moore will again join Coach Jaako Mikola in the weight event team.

Johnny Prior, Everett Donaghy and Gordon Brown will have to wait until February for Winter baseball to start. Jack Parkinson again will join the boxers and defend his laurels in the 145-pound class.

Squash, which is quite a sport at Cambridge, will hail most of the athletes. Some of the players are planning on entering a team composed of football players in the University squash league.

Charley Pratt will again be with the track team, but pressure is being brought on him to play hockey. Pratt was one sweet defense man at Loomis and right now is the best defense candidate available for the hockey team.

HORWEEN GETS FINE MATERIAL

Gordon Douglas, Johnny Prior and Sam Burns, as ends; Tim Clark, at tackle; Jack Parkinson and Ralph Stewart, at guard; Jake Turner, at centre; Gordon Brown, at quarter with a backfield display of Dave Guarnaccia, Joe Crosby, Joe Potter, Art French, Wally Harper and Tom Mason.

Non-lettermen on the present squad include Pickard at end; Red Barrett at tackle; Dick O'Connell at guard, Bill Bigelow at center; with Everett Donaghy, Guy Holbrook and Red Grant as backs.

Elliott Putnam, quarterback, and Bob Meadows, an end, played on last year's team but were ineligible this year. They are still in college and are expected to satisfy their faculty requirements before the football season rolls around again.

Horween meets a tougher schedule next year, but he has the material and he is not worrying. He is pointing his squad for the Army game, which is the third clash on the schedule.

Symmetry and Grace Aided by Kicking

By Maria Jeritza.

IN this day of knee-length frocks and one-piece bathing suits it is of paramount importance to the woman who values her appearance to see to it that her ankles, feet and lower limbs are symmetrical and graceful.

But even though the mode of the longer skirt should sweep over the world of fashion the woman who values her beauty would continue her efforts for perfect loveliness of body. Beauty is worth while for its own sake, even though it may not be on dress parade.

The average modern woman makes one mistake, which seriously counts against the shapeliness of her lower limbs and may injure her health. She has the habit of crossing her legs. Some exponents of evolution claim that dislike of balancing both feet firmly on the ground, indicated by this habit, is a trait we inherited from monkey ancestors, since monkeys are happiest when balanced precariously on a high bough of a tree. Nevertheless to say, this theory is not authenticated. But the fact remains that sitting with crossed legs, favorite position of the flapper, interferes with circulation of blood through the lower limbs and causes bunchy flabby knees.

Still more serious, according to medical authorities, curvature of the spine is sometimes caused by this habit. It is certainly uncomfortable and far more graceful as well as less harmful to the spine, to sit with your feet crossed at the ankles and both feet on the floor.

Aside from walking, which is the best all-around exercise there is, kicking is possibly the best means of bringing grace and symmetry to the hips, thighs, lower back, knees calves and ankles.

Kicking exercises as taught in the first six months of ballet dancing and curves to scrawny legs and reduce to symmetry those that are too large.

In practicing kicking it is well to balance yourself by holding onto a mantel or the back of a chair, with your outstretched arm. Stand straight with your spine and head erect, your chest high your weight over the balls of your feet. Kick with your toes pointed, your knees straight, as high as you can directly in front of you, ten times with the right, ten times with the left leg, each day to slenderize your waist and thighs.

Do the same backward in the same way, to bring symmetry to your lower back and thighs. The side kick with feet pointed straight ahead is a marvelous help in reducing the hips which protrude painfully too far more times with each leg each day.

If you wish to increase rather than reduce your size do the same exercises twenty times, and be sure to stop before you feel tired. Needless to say, the exercises are of no use unless in good health.

You will find that you can add greatly to the symmetry of your lower limbs by systematic exercise and especially by means of kicking exercises.

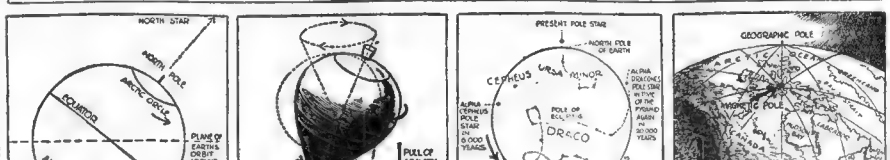
The Story of the Stars

(The Spinning of the Earth)

By Garrett P. Serviss



As this Earth of ours turns on its axis the North Pole points directly toward the star named 'Polaris," or the "Pole Star." There is no corresponding star, however, above the South Pole.

The leaning axis of the Earth turns slowly round like the peg of a spinning top, but in the contrary way. This motion is called the "Procession of the Equinoxes." Dotted lines show changes in position.

One revolution of the Pole takes nearly 26,000 years, and during that period different stars that lie near the circle become, one after another, the Pole Star, as shown in diagram.

Besides the poles of its axis, called "geographic" poles, the Earth has two "magnetic" poles, more than one thousand miles from the others. Toward these the compass needle points.

Russia's Greatest Composer

By COZETTE DOUGLASS

PROBABLY the greatest of all the Russian composers, and undoubtedly the one who gave to the world the richest presentation of the plaintive beauty of the Russian folk songs, Peter Tschaikovsky holds a firm place in the world of music.

He was born in Votinsk on May 7, 1840, but moved to St Petersburg with his parents at an early age. His father was a director of the Technological Institute and desired that his son Peter follow in his footsteps However, Peter showed such an aptitude for music that when he was a young man he was much sought after in Petrograd society as he could improvise on the most fascinating airs. This and his good looks and refinement, established his position in society.

Through the influence of Anton Rubinstein, he entered the Conservatory at Petrograd and eventually became professor of harmony at the Conservatory of Moscow

On July 6, 1877, Tschaikovsky married Antonina Ivanovna, a marriage which has been called a "brief and misguided incident." His first love was Desiree Artot, a singer with an Italian opera troupe, who had refused to marry him because he asked her to abandon her stage career.

The real romance of Tschaikovsky's life however, seems to have been the friendship of Mme. Nadezhda von Meck In 1876 he aroused her interest through his impassioned music and she began to help the composer by commissions for work. In 1877, however she granted him an annual allowance of about $3,000 on condition that we would never attempt to see her She was his confidante and to her he confided his innermost thoughts and ambitions through the medium of letters.

He was one of the first Russian composers to travel and to introduce the music of his native land—which he passionately loved—to the outside world. An anecdote is told of him that when he and his brother were shown a map of the world showing the map of Russia and said upon all the other countries except France, to which country he was always drawn.

Tschaikovsky music is distinctly Russian. It is said "his handling of the modern orchestra, combined with the intensely emotional character of his themes, makes his work as important in its way as that of Liszt or Berlioz." He expresses gloriously the deep emotionalism of the Russian people to the extent that Count Leo Tolstoy exclaimed as he listened to one of Tschaikovsky's compositions "I have heard the soul of my patient and suffering people."

Tschaikovsky died in St. Petersburg on November 6, 1893, from cholera contracted by drinking a glass of unfiltered water.

Stomach Disorders in Children

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.,
Former President of the American Medical Association

YOU are fortunate if none of your children ever has had an upset stomach. This is the condition that doctors are in the habit of calling a "gastric attack."

It is most commonly seen in children between the ages of two and seven, and is perhaps commonest in those of five or six. The child refuses his tea, seems fitful, out of sorts and a little feverish, and alarms his parents by vomiting, during the evening, some of the food taken with his dinner. Then like a sensible person, you send for the doctor. When he comes in he finds the patient with a temperature and a dirty tongue, drowsy, irritable and still refusing food. He doesn't do much except take nature's hint and let the child follow its bent for eating. After a few days the child recovers.

Of course the disorder varies enormously in different children. In some it may show itself as a feeling of sickness, lasting only a comparatively short time. Others may vomit terribly, with or followed by bad diarrhoea—a condition formerly spoken of as "cholera morbus." Still others may be constipated, with pale movements.

Now the usual causes of these gastric attacks are (1) infections in the stomach or the bowel, (2) faulty feeding, (3) over-exertion and excitement.

The first of these is the common est. For instance, a child with recurrent infection of the tonsils may have periodic vomiting attacks of just this kind without complaining of its throat. This means that the infection, swallowed from the throat, has spread to the stomach bowel or even the liver. The remedy is to remove the tonsils.

In thin, nervous, dyspeptic children chronic catarrh of the nose or chest may be at fault. In rare cases the cause may be chronic disease of the kidneys.

During the influenza season these attacks are often called "gastric flu." The onset is extremely sudden. The vomiting is often accompanied by diarrhoea. There is little doubt that, in these cases, the cause is an influenzal infection of the stomach or bowel.

Next, with regard to faulty feeding. The average child of this age does not have bad stomach trouble as the result of slight errors in diet Attacks of this kind are, therefore, not likely to be many the result of "overeating" They may be but are not likely to be. In all such cases infection is more probably at the bottom of the attack.

Correct Manners Explained

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I was married secretly some time ago—several months ago, in fact, and now we are ready to announce the marriage. My sister wishes to give us an announcement party, and then, during the evening, "spring" the announcement. What do you think of this idea? Is it necessary to send invitations?

N. AND F.

I DON'T think well of the idea. To begin with, any party given to announce your marriage would, I think, emphasize—over-emphasize, in fact—the unconventionality of your marriage. In all announcements of this kind, when the event itself has been unconventionally done, it is always, to my mind, best to make the announcement as inconspicuously as possible.

The very best thing for you to do is to tell your close friends of your marriage and then write to the other friends who are not within "calling on" distance, friends to whom the news is important. After all, these are the important people to tell, and in a few people know the news will spread as rapidly as you will wish to have it.

Then, after this dignified procedure, and after you have moved into your own home, I suggest that you give a tea some Sunday afternoon, or a reception if you wish to make it more "stylish," or a Sunday evening supper. To this invite your own friends, and this can be in the nature of a house warming, not an announcement. Then I am sure that your friends will admire the way you have made the belated announcement.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

May I enter your cozy corner for some advice? The girls in our class have a club which we attend every Wednesday night. Last Wednesday night we had stuffed olives for supper with other foods. My friends and I took the olives on our fingers and nibbled at them while others took them up on their forks.

Please tell me which is the proper way. And do not hesitate to criticise my way, for I want to know which was right. AUNT ZUBY.

INDEED, you are receiving the friendliest kind of welcome into my corner! As a matter of fact, your letter was one of the most delightful that I have received in the days that I have had the column. Bless you for it! If you were really an "aunt," I wish I were one of your nieces—they are fortunate.

You and your friends were quite right to eat the olives in your fingers. Of course, if there was a serving fork or spoon with the olives it should be used to take the olives to the plate, but when olives are eaten—green olives, ripe or stuffed ones—they should be eat with the fingers. It looks very "up-stage," doesn't it, to see people eating olives with a fork?

Won't you please come soon again to my column?

This Day in Our History

THE British Isles were declared in a state of blockade on November 21, 1806, when Napoleon I issued his "Berlin Decree." This order could not be enforced and consequently was styled the "paper Blockade."

The LOVELORN

by Beatrice Fairfax

A Love Serial of Boston Girls by an Authority on the Affairs of the Heart

The Dark Angel

Temptation, Beautiful and Sinister, Hovers Over Us

DRAWN BY Dorothy Flack

TEMPTATION like a beautiful dark angel disturbs her peace. And, strange, too, that the shadow of temptation should be cast by Fair Love that shines from the happiness of a White Angel.

Love, a strange emotion that has more moods and tenses than an irregular verb, has also two strong voices. One calls a trifle obviously in a loud but luring voice to things of Wealth-Land where nectar is in a cup soon drained of its happiness.

Then, a faint voice, but one that calls in a persistent tone of appeal, almost whispers of its sweet, enduring life. And again there is a Wealth-Land where gold is pure happiness and not of the coin that turns brass with time.

And, while the voices call, pictures of the future pass in quick succession.

When TEMPTATION flickers on the screen of Life, it is a vivid thing of gay happiness of a dissipable kind. A happiness of clinking glasses, noisy protestations of love that expresses itself in parties, promises and all the lure of gold rimmed TEMPTATION.

And, the White Angel also paints her picture. A cottage window whose pane of glass is an enduring heart. A cottage vine that binds the love-folk of its home with the strength of its tight entwining. And, a curly head is glimpsed through the open window. A perfect angel come to live with them who denied TEMPTATION and were guided by the story of a White Angel.

Ann Took New Courage From Her Own Determination

CHAPTER 19.

YET the impression was gone as swiftly as it had come. Looking at him now, Ann wondered why it was her heart had plunged sickeningly downward, why she had felt with deadly certainty that Bill loved Georgia and would always love her.

He was sitting there calmly enough, facing her across the table in the restaurant, and there was only the little flicker of recognition in his eyes that showed he was conscious of Georgia's nearness. No other sign, no other hint that he was moved or troubled.

Ann passed her hand across her eyes. It was like an hallucination, she felt. Why it was only one more indication of all Bill meant to her. She cared so much that she tortured herself with thoughts of losing him forever. . . .

But Bill made no comment. He was pretending he hadn't seen Georgia and Ernest Brooks. Ann stole a covert glance in the direction. A feminine glance that missed nothing, that flew comprehensively to them and away from them in the fraction of a second.

Georgia was angry, embarrassed, defiant. She was laughing, talking swiftly, excitedly. There was a cold smile on Ernest Brooks' mouth. He was committing a mess with a fixed look. So they had decided to cut Ann and Bill. And Bill had decided to pretend they weren't there.

Ann couldn't stand it, she wanted frankness now, wanted the truth. She said deliberately:

"Funny, their coming here, too . . . isn't it?"

Bill looked up. His face seemed quite pale. He glanced in the direction of Ann's nod, and made a show of being surprised.

What fools men were! she thought. As if he could deceive her for one minute! Pretending he hadn't even seen them! He was smiling, but smiling uncertainly.

"What do we care about them?" he asked. His voice was a little husky. It shook the least bit.

And Ann's heart went downward once more. "He's in love with her in love with her!" she said wearily to herself, and the words went on in a kind of desperate refrain in her head, "In love with her, in love with her."

Suddenly she wanted to get out of the place as soon as possible, she wanted to escape. She felt miserable, she felt sick.

Ann Took New Courage From Her Own Determination

What was the use of anything what was the use of living? Bill loved Georgie, he still loved her, he adored her. He could never be her sibly hurt like that by Ann herself, never, never, never!

And then fiercely to herself she said: "I won't give him up! I'll make him forget her! I'll make him love me!"

It was strange how her mood changed then. She took new courage from her own determination

She smiled, listened without knowing what he was saying something about the food, something about good restaurants.

"Yes, Bill. . . yes . . . you're right."

Georgia's back to her still. Ernest Brooks stealing swift, hostile glances at her when he thought she wasn't looking. But Ann's senses were sharpened now. She saw everything. Her mind was leaping swiftly. She'd get out of here, not linger a moment more than was necessary.

"Bill, let's go down to Revere Park. I'd like to go there. Will you take me there?"

"Sure."

"And I'm not hungry. Besides I'd like to save my appetite for hot dogs. I just get a bite here—I've had enough already."

"I know, but dessert—"

"Oh, I don't want any dessert. I don't want a single thing more. Let's go out now before the crowd gets there. Why, I haven't been to the beach this Summer."

The check was paid, they rose and made their way out. Bill was walking very straight, he was frowning, looking hard in front of them. The revolving door purred smoothly. They were out in the air. Ann drew deeply a long breath of relief.

And Bill was lighter, gayer now, almost too cheerful. He was talking away, making jokes, but his eyes were burning. They were grim and serious

"It doesn't matter," Ann told herself. "He's thinking about her, but I'll make him forget. I'll make him think about me instead. I can. I know I can."

But she felt depressed and unhappy.

Then they were at the park.

It was a fine evening, and the attendance at the beach was large. Ann and Bill strolled with the crowd

"Let's have our picture taken."

They smiled broadly in the face of the light that gave their skins an unnatural greenish hue. But Ann put her picture back in its envelope, and put that in her bag, and she thought how she would look at it secretly afterwards, how she would stare at it the first thing in the morning, stare and remember, and dream. . . .

The Serious Look Was Leaving Bill's Eyes Now

The serious look was leaving Bill's eyes now. He made two good shots in the shooting gallery and felt pleased with himself.

"Let's try the Thunderbolt. It isn't bad—there's one pretty good dip."

It climbed up, up, up, hesitated like a live thing at the peak t which it was headed, and then the car in which Bill and Ann were sitting drove downwards in a giddy swoop that made Ann close her eyes.

She leaned closer to Bill, closer because she was afraid. His arm encircled her. He shouted something in her ears. Up again, down again.

"Here it is now!" Bill shouted. "Hang on!"

A sudden short plunge seemed to hurl them into the pit of the earth, sending the sky rocking around their heads.

"Oh! . . ." She was huddled close to him now. He was laughing, with masculine pity for the fear of women.

"Pretty good, wasn't it? Not scared still, are you?"

She shut his eyes. She didn't speak. They stepped out on the platform.

Georgia was smiling down at her flushed cheeks, bright eyes, and tumbled hair.

Now that right now you look just like—you look like George!"

His voice had begun cheerfully, and died away. His face grew somber . . . desperate again. Georgie—still thinking of Georgie! Then Ann made up her mind. She would not hesitate or look back. She would use the last weapon of all. She would let him see how she cared for him, how anxious she was to comfort him. She would show him that tonight—now!

'Sally's Shoulders'; Beau Wakes Up Sick After His Noisy Party

days; that she had fallen in love with him suddenly, blindly and foolishly—the way a woman falls in love just once in her life, no matter how many little love affairs she may have before and after that one!

While she lay there in her bed with her thoughts far away, she became aware of noises in the house—the sound of a door opening and of softly shod feet walking around the rooms.

Presently Beau's voice came from the bathroom:

"Say, Sally, where in Tophet is the baking soda? —I'm sick as a hound dog, and I want some."

"Sssh!" hissed Sally, tumbling out of bed and into her kimono. "It's in the kitchen cupboard, of course."

She got it, and mixed him a strong dose of it. His face was pale gray, and his eyes had puffs beneath them.

He shuddered as he emptied the glass. "I sure am at low-pressure this a. m.," he groaned, with one hand pressed to his stomach

"I hate to say 'I told you so,' but you know you can't drink, Beau,"

Sally said to him with her motherly little air, "And if you must put gin in the punch at these parties why don't you have them on saturday nights instead of in the middle of the week. Now, you'll never be able to go to work today."

"Sure I will. I'll go if it kills me," answered Beau, and shuffled back to bed.

True to his word he went to work that morning.

He appeared at the door of Sally's room at seven, fully dressed and looking the picture of misery.

"What on earth are you doing up at this time?" Sally gasped when she saw him. Usually Beau had to be literally dragged from his bed in the morning.

"I'm going to walk part of the way to the bank," he moaned. "I thought the fresh air and the exercise might set me up—I sure am sick."

He stood there, gazing intently at her for a minute more. Then he asked a question: "Say, Sal, you couldn't slip me a fiver, could you? I'm flat busted."

Sally's blue eyes widened. "Why, it's only Wednesday morning, Beau!" she exclaimed. "And you got your pay on Saturday. Surely it isn't all gone!"

He nodded his blond head. "Yes it is," he said, and made no explanation. Beau paid the gas bill or the light bill every two or three months and considered that he had done his duty by his family. He paid no board at all.

"Why, what have you done with it?" Sally was beginning, and then all at once it came to her that he had spent it all on liquor for Mabel's party.

She shook her head. "I'm sorry Beau," she told him, "but I was just going to ask you for some money. You see, I went ahead and bought all the food for Mabel's party thinking that she would pay me the money I spent. I asked her about it last night and she said you would give it to me—"

"She did;" Beau broke in. "Well, she didn't have any right to say a thing like that! It was her party—I got the liquor and the smokes, didn't I? The least she could do was to pay for the eats. She makes at most as much as I do—Well, I'll see that you get your money."

But Sally knew that he never would see to it. She knew him and loved him in spite of her knowledge of him and his weakness. He was her only brother, after all.

"If I had five dollars, I'd give it to you," she said. "You know I would, don't you, Beau? But I haven't got it—I paid the rent on Saturday, and I was three weeks late with it, at that. Here!"

She opened a little brown silk purse that hung beside her toilet mirror, and handed him a limp dollar bill from it.

"That's all I can let you have," she finished unhappily.

Beau took it and went.

"What were you two gassing about?" Millie asked sleepily, turning and stretching luxuriously in her bed on the far side of the room. Her blue eyes were wide and dewy as a child's under the tousled mass of yellow hair.

Sally did not answer her. She was thinking about the dream again—the dream about Millie and John Nye. And, for one fleeting second, she almost hated Millie as she looked at her lying there. Then she was herself again.

"Thank heaven I don't have to get up this morning!" Millie sighed, clasping her soft little hands behind her head. "That Nye man can stay away for a month as far as I'm concerned—I hate the thought of a job in this kind of weather."

Here was a new problem.

For with Millie not working, and Beau spending practically every nickel he earned on the demanding and fussy Mabel, the whole load of keeping the house going fell to Sally.

Her face was thoughtful as she went out to the cool dim kitchen and measured coffee into the white enamel pot. She didn't put in as much as usual this morning. . . . Coffee, the only brand the family would drink, cost fifty-five cents a pound.

"I'll have to go out to Aunt Emily's tonight and see if I can borrow a little money from her," she decided as she began to cut paper thin slices of bread from the loaf of that remained in the tin box on the table.

There had been two loaves there when Sally had gone to bed that night before. But evidently Mabel had made a few extra sandwiches for her party. . . . All the butter had been used, too. The empty dish was in the sink full of water.

"Gee whiz!" Sally said aloud but the cloud have cried. "Well, we'll have to have extra oranges this morning. That's all."

She opened the door of the little ice closet. The large brown paper bag that had held a dozen oranges the night before was empty too. Mabel must have made some extra punch for the gin drinkers.

"Ye gods!" cried Sally under her breath. "Ye gods!" was the phrase that she used when she was in the state of mind where a man would have sworn under his breath.

She made lot cakes for breakfast that morning and it was a hot job

Tomorrow—Sally goes to confer with Aunt Emily.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist's

Fashion Fads

Having Nothing to Conceal — Many of the most stunning sport coats reveal both sides of their character by being reversible. One side is of spotted novelty fur, bordered with stitched brading of the duvetyn that forms their inner surface.

Not Neglecting Neckwear—current fashions are strongly featuring lace, in cream, ecru and rose beige sea es. Back panel berthas with small rounded front collars, oval-shaped, frilled-edge panels extending nearly to the belt, and vestees are extensively worn, and usually have matching cuffs.

Hark to the Shark!—If you would carry a smart handbag with your tailored costume, for the smartest of utility purses are of sharkskin. All sizes and shapes are shown in two varieties—one with a plaid and flat, the other with a rough and pebbly surface. As sharkskin readily absorbs color, it can be had in the most subtle shades to match practically any costume. Belts, vanity and cigarette cases, lighters and other accessories are made to match the purses.

Does Outspoken Person Scare You?

By LUCY LOWELL

THERE is much to be said for the sort of person who will "get a thing off his chest."

He may be considered as abrupt, as undiplomatic, or even scrappy. Any number of unpleasant things, in fact, may be laid up against him by those who do not sense the genuine honesty beneath his willingness for a "showdown."

But the fact of the matter is that usually the one is a fair-minded fellow, so completely on the level with himself and his fellow man that he cannot bear to let go a suspicion or a doubt unchallenged.

It may be something of a shock to your social sense to have him come to you and say: "Look here, I have reason to suspect this thing about you. How about it, now? Where do you stand? I'd rather not believe it, and I won't unless you say it's true. But I'd like to know."

As I say, it may be a bit of a jolt But if you stop to think it over you know that here is a fair-minded person who wishes to think the best of you and who is willing to take your word for the best.

He may be undiplomatic, but he's a good friend. You know you can bank on him.

You know he is not a scandalspreader. Not one who meets you with a smile, and when your back is turned goes to stirring "Of course I don't know, but they say—" And so on Getting out from under responsibility himself, but even in the act of so doing managing to give impetus to the very thing he disclaims.

The one to watch out for is he who never has a question to ask. He is the one who harbors doubt and suspicion who builds up in his mind a purely imaginary figure which he calls by your name and which seldom is at all to your credit.

Build your faith on frankness even if it hurts a little sometimes.

AUCTION BRIDGE

by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

The World's Greatest Authority

HAND NO. 215

South is the dealer. What is the proper bidding and play?

In the next issue Mr. Whitehead will explain the salient points in the bidding and play of the above hand. Fill out your own chart and compare it with his method.

These hands must not be bid or played "Double Dummy," i. e., as though all four hands were exposed.

Salient Points of the Bidding

East, holding stoppers in two suits other than the suit bid by West (Spades), denies West's Major suit with a No Trump. But East denied with two Clubs instead of a No Trump, he would have made a stopper in a second suit in which case West would have had no justification in going to No Trump, as the Heart suit would be marked as unprotected in both hands. As it so happens, five Clubs could have been made had the hand been played at this declaration.

Salient Points of the Play

Trick 1. East cannot afford to pass the first Diamond trick for fear of an immediate shift to Hearts, driving out his only re-entry for his long Club honors, guns cannot be made. If they are divided, or if North holds both the King and Jack, East has an easy game hand.

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your Bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

YOU SENT FOR ME, MR KNUTE-NOGGLE?
YES, SAM. BY WAY OF EXPRESSING MY GRATITUDE TO YOU FOR HAVING RESCUED ME FROM THOSE BLOODTHIRSTY KIDNAPERS I HAVE INVESTED A MILLION DOLLARS IN YOUR NAME, THE INCOME OF WHICH YOU ARE TO SPEND EACH WEEK AS YOU RECEIVE IT!
EVERY PENNY HOWEVER, IS TO BE SPENT UPON YOURSELF!! KNOWING YOUR FAMILY AS I DO, AND YOUR PARTICULAR WEAKNESS IN THEIR DIRECTION, I SHALL INSIST THAT YOU OBEY THIS STIPULATION TO THE LETTER, OR THE DEAL IS OFF!
MY GOSH! KNUTE, WOT IS THE INCOME ON A MILLION BUCKS?
INVESTED AS IT IS, IT SHOULD AMOUNT TO SOMETHING LIKE FIFTY-TWO THOUSAND A YEAR.
WHICH MEANS ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS PER WEEK IN ROUND NUMBERS!

Easy for Skiny to Forgive — By McNamara

NO WORD FROM SHRIMP FLYNN.
EVER SINCE HE GOT THE TOP OF HIS BEAN PECKED FULL OF HOLES BY AUBREY, SKINNY'S PET BIRD, SHRIMP HAS BEEN IN SECLUSION.
WHENEVER SHRIMP GOES INTO SECLUSION, HE IS EITHER SICK OR FRAMING UP SOMETHING.
WE KNOW PERFECTLY WELL HE IS NOT SICK.
YOU KNOW MASTER SKINNY I FEEL AWFUL ABOUT THIS. IT WAS ALL MY FAULT OFFERING MASTER SHRIMP FIFTY BUCKS TO GET YOUR BIRD. I FEEL DREADFUL. WILL YOU FORGIVE ME?
ME, FORGIVE YOU! - WHAT FOR?
WHAT FOR?! - WHY, MY GRANDDS! - WASN'T HAT A DASTARDLY THING FOR ME TO DO!
BUT, IT'S ALL OVER NOW. SHRIMP GOT PECKED ON THE BEAN, AND AUBREY IS STILL WITH ME. GOSH! - EVERYTHING'S ALL RIGHT BY ME!
OH MY WORD! - THIS IS TOO MUCH! - YOUR GENEROSITY OVER-WHELMS ME! SNIFF! - SNIFF!!
GEE WHIZZ UAN - DON'T GET MAD. - YOU KNOW I AINT GOT NO TEMPER. GEE WHIZZ. - HAVE A HEART!

What He May Expect — By Hershfield

I HEAR THAT NATE NIXWOOX IS BUYING ME A PRESENT FOR MINE BIRTHDAY - NOO, WE SHALL SEE!!
I'VE GOT TO LOOK AROUND AGAIN FOR A PRESENT FOR YOU, ABE I WENT INTO THE RITZMORE SHOP, SAW A FINE PIECE OF SILVERWARE. I LOOKED AT THE PRICE AND TOLD HIM TO WRAP IT UP!
=THEN I FIND OUT THAT THE TAG SAID TWO HUNDRED DOLLARS!!
HOW MUCH DID YOU THINK IT WAS??
TWO DOLLARS

AN OPEN LETTER TO MR. FRISBY

Mr. Gantry.

Dear Fris: What, if anything, are you doing regarding the risque shows on Main street? This matter would bear watching.

My suggestion is that you appoint a committee, with myself as chairman, to be furnished with free passes to all these shows. We then could make a report to a supercommittee, with yourself as superchairman, and you and I, as superchairman and chairman of the two committees, could work out some scheme whereby those poor girls could be supplied with more clothing. We might even deliver it personally, if you get what I mean.

Yours for vice suppression,
Elmer Gantry.

Sir—

The other day my father-in-law, who plays the ponies, gave me twenty-five bucks to take down to a bookie and bet on "Harrpraeik" to win in the second race. Imagine my embarrassment when I got downtown a little late and found that the race was over and "Harrpraeik" had come in last.

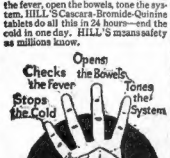
Don't Let a Cold Put You on Your Back

A cold is a serious germ attack, highly contagious. Don't neglect it for an hour. Nobody knows where a cold may lead.

Four things should be done for a cold —and at once. Break the cold, check the fever, open the bowels, tone the system. HILL'S Cascara-Bromide-Quinine tablets do all this in 24 hours—end the cold in one day. HILL'S means safety as millions know.



HILL'S
Cascara - Bromide - Quinine

Be sure you get HILL'S in the red box with portrait. At all druggists—30c.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By JOHN P. MEDBURY.

ACCORDING to matrimonial records, over fifty thousand women were jilted last year. The average girl who was left waiting at the church is now waiting at her lawyer's office.

IT'S the woman who pays, but it's her attorney who collects.

A MAN may have a right to change his mind, but he has to pay for the privilege.

WOMEN may be the weaker sex, but they're stronger in court.

IT'S the hand that rocks the cradle, but it's the ankle that swings the verdict.

A JURYMAN can still be thrifty and spend your money foolishly.

ALWAYS DEAD TIRED?

How sad! Sallow complexion, coated tongue, poor appetite, bad breath, pimply skin and always tired. What's wrong? You are poisoned. The bowels are clogged and liver inactive. Take this famous prescription used constantly in place of calomel by men and women for 20 years—Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They are harmless yet very effective. A compound of vegetable ingredients and olive oil. They act easily upon the bowels, free the system of poison caused by faulty elimination and tone up liver.

Be beautiful. Have rosy cheeks, clear eyes and youthful energy that make a success of life. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, nightly. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c.

THE foreman is the Santa Claus who puts $50,000 in your sweetie's stocking.

THIS is a lot of money for a broken heart. The insurance company only gives you $2,500 if you lose your leg.

IT'S all right for a man to change his mind if he can afford it, but there's no sense in running up a lot of unnecessary bills.

VERDICTS are cash. The Supreme Court doesn't give credit.

YOU can't buy heart balm on deferred payment.

THE MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By HELEN ROWLAND

"NECKING," according to the District Attorney of Chicago, "should be reasonably clandestine."

Hurrah! And likewise, hear! hear! We sympathize with him with all our heart. We, too, have suffered from embarrassment caused by this open display of blobby emotion, so poetically termed "necking." The very word gives us mal-de-mer.

Far be it from US to attempt to scale the Matterhorn or to stop the Necking Generation from expressing itself. Necking is the symbol of the Blushless Age. But there are SO MANY things in this world that ought to be clandestine!

Corned beef and cabbage, for instance, should be clandestine. And clothes-lines and incinerators and family fights and moth-balls.

A cabbage may have the right to express itself even as you and I—but not under your neighbor's drawing-room windows.

You do not object to your neighbor hanging his purple pajamas and other intimate garments out on a clothes-line. But you are peeved when he hangs them right in full view of your front piazza.

"Necking" may no longer be regarded as sinful or immoral. It may be as pure as an incinerator, as innocent as a spring onion, as natural as a cabbage and as beautiful as all three. But, like a toothbrush or a napkin, it should be a purely PERSONAL affair.

People who MUST "neck," like people who must use a tooth-pick, should keep it a dark secret. You have no right, in well-bred society, to spoil other people's appetites for food—or love.

And this open-faced "necking" in restaurants and taxicabs does wreck the illusions and spoil the appetite for love. It has taken all the thrills out of sentiment and all the kick out of romance for most of us. It is like living your whole life with the shades pulled up!

"Necking is to love-making what the custard-pie comedies are to drama.

Necking is not unlawful—it is simply unbeautiful.

Necking is not criminal. It is ten times worst. It is BAD TASTE!

"Necking" is the modern BURLESQUE on love-making! How any girl can get a "kick" out of it is a mystery. But if you must indulge in it, do get behind a potted palm and be CLANDESTINE about it! There are still lots of us who believe in poetic love—and Santa Claus!

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Bayer Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. If it says Bayer, it's genuine; and if it doesn't, it is not! Headaches are dispelled by Bayer Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; even neuralgia, neuritis, and rheumatism promptly relieved. Get Bayer—at any drugstore—with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Bayer Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

NO STATE GUARD AT VOTING

Mayor John J. Whelan of Chelsea, a candidate for re-election at the city primaries tomorrow, announced today that for the first time in five years there will be no state police at the polling booths during the voting from noon to 9 p. m.

Mayor Whelan is being opposed by Lawrence J. Quigley, who occupied the office for five years, and who was defeated on stickers in 1926.

In addition to the mayoralty fight, the voters will also be asked to determine whether the salary of the chief executive of the city shall be increased from $5,000 to $7,500 and the term extended from one year to two.

FLOOD LOSS 25 MILLION

Washington, Nov. 21 (A. P.)—Estimates in the hands of Secretary Hoover place the Nov. 2 Gulf flood damages at between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000.

The figures were compiled from reports by the various state departments, by chambers of commerce and by railroads traversing the stricken territory.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

Vermonters

In the little Winooski valley town of North Duxbury, a dozen or fifteen miles northwest from Montpelier, relief workers came a day or two ago upon a family of five flood sufferers, freezing and all but starving in what is little more than a shed.

"Not even the children," says the man who tells of the incident, "would ADMIT that they needed help."

The Vermonter—the New Englander, for that matter—"just naturally" shrinks from anything like "pu...c aid." There will be no long lines of Vermonters before the relief offices. Hundreds and it may be thousands, who have lost nearly everything, will have to be sought out. It was a Waterbury man who, smiling a welcome to Secretary Hoover, said, "Well, sir, we have NOTHING LEFT BUT PLENTY OF COURAGE."

It was something for everyone to be thankful for—on Thursday and every day—that Secretary Hoover found the Third New England Conference in session and waiting for him. Action followed speedily.

Under the plan devised by the New England Council the banks are to extend needed credit for the upbuilding of the Green Mountain State's industrial and commercial activities.

State and Federal governments will together undertake the repair and reconstruction of public roads. The immediate demand upon the State is for $800,000, with which to make roads and bridges passable for the Winter.

And home relief? The Red Cross will take care of that, replacing cattle, horses, farm implements and tools, providing food and clothing for the season just ahead and, wherever necessary, furnishing the funds necessary for building construction.

Secretary Hoover estimates the total physical loss to Vermont on account of the flood at $30,000,000.

A staggering blow to a little commonwealth of less than 400,000 people; an insurmountable blow, perhaps, if it were not that these are a people who smile while they say that they have "nothing left but courage."

One Big Family

"New England in Action"

Having seen the promptness with which the Conference at Springfield rose to the task of giving support to the commerce and industry of Vermont through the extension of bank credits it will be a long time, we imagine, before anyone again asks the REASON for a New England Council.

The task the founders of the Council took upon themselves less than three years ago, at the call of the Governors, was the creating of that New England "community consciousness" which all agreed had been lacking. That it is at least in a fair way of accomplishment will not be denied.

There was, in the beginning, no thought of "relief work," no fear that New England solidarity was to be tested so soon in such a way as the floods have tested it.

What we were going to see at the Third Conference, we were told in the advance notices of that assembly, was "An Idea in Action."

That is what we did see!

When the notices were prepared there was no sign of the trouble that was coming to Vermont and the Connecticut valley.

The flood changed everything. What everybody at Springfield wanted and waited for, it seemed, was Secretary Hoover's report of his visit to the Green Mountains.

The Third New England Conference will be remembered as the one which made "Neighbor" Vermont's troubles and problems the immediate trouble and problem of all New England. Papers prepared many weeks ahead, on topics like "Getting New England Together," and "A United New England at Work," appeared almost clairvoyant, had something of the touch of prophecy.

In less than three years the Council has become an institution New England could not do without. If President John Silsbee Lawrence and his associated pioneers are not well pleased with the result of their endeavor to bring New England into "team play" it is not because they have no right to be.

Nothing Exclusive About EVERYBODY'S Order of Charity

None of us has any fear that New England's 20,000 flood sufferers will not be well administered to because, as we say, we know the "Red Cross is taking care of them."

But WHO is taking care of the Red Cross?

In Vermont, buildings are being repaired, household articles and furniture are being supplied, a surplus of clothing is on hand, food is being given to those in need of it and ALL needs are being met as speedily as they arise.

The Autumn has been one of unprecedented calamities. In 15 States and the District of Columbia the Red Cross is carrying on MAJOR relief operations, following disasters.

Nearly 60,000 persons are looking to the Society for aid.

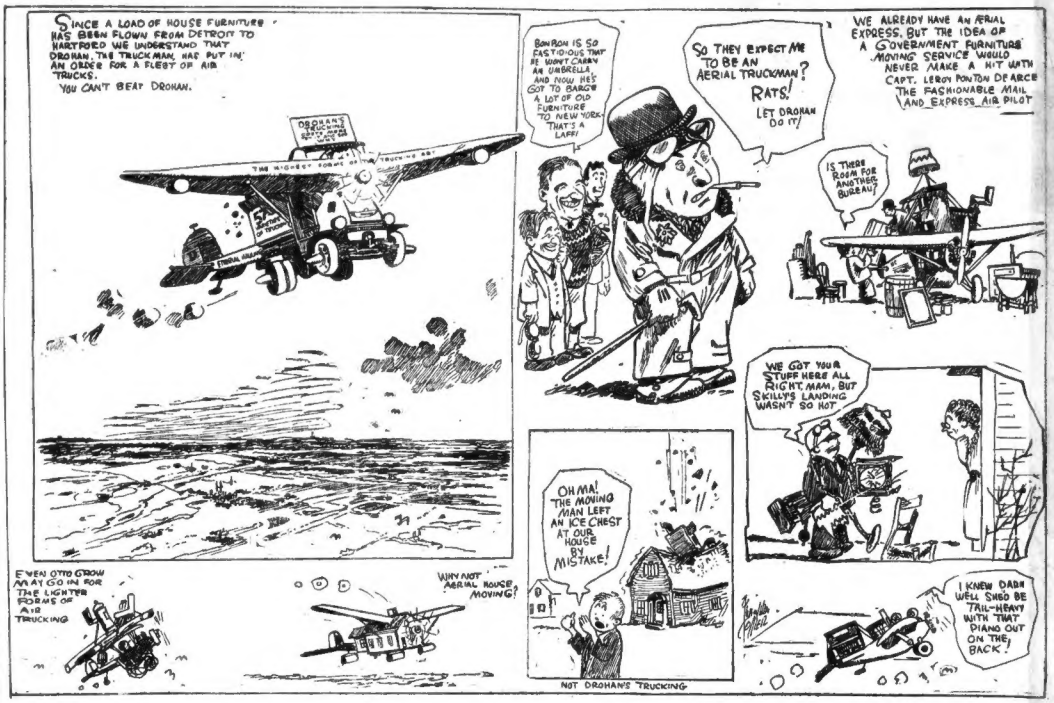
The work in New England finds the organization in the midst of its annual roll-call.

In Boston, the hope is that 75,000 persons will contribute One Dollar each to that membership fund which makes it possible for the Red Cross to act in time of disaster with the promptness and efficiency which we have all seen exemplified in Vermont.

Unpaid workers are not so numerous as they were in the days of war excitement and it is barely possible that none will solicit your membership. Don't let that keep you from joining the Red Cross and having the feeling that you are at least doing your bit. It is everybody's privilege.

A dollar bill, sent to the American Red Cross at Newbury and Berkeley Streets, Boston, will place your name on the rolls and make you feel better.

Now Comes Trucking by Air :-: :-: By Franklin Collier



SINCE A LOAD OF HOUSE FURNITURE HAS BEEN FLOWN FROM DETROIT TO HARTFORD WE UNDERSTAND THAT DROHAN, THE TRUCKMAN, HAS PUT IN AN ORDER FOR A FLEET OF AIR TRUCKS.
YOU CAN'T BEAT DROHAN.
BOURBON IS SO FASTIDIOUS THAT HE WON'T CARRY AN UMBRELLA, AND NOW HE'S GOT TO BARGE A LOT OF OLD FURNITURE TO NEW YORK. THAT'S A LAFF!
SO THEY EXPECT ME TO BE AN AERIAL TRUCKMAN? RATS! LET DROHAN DO IT!
WE ALREADY HAVE AN AERIAL EXPRESS. BUT THE IDEA OF A GOVERNMENT FURNITURE MOVING SERVICE WOULD NEVER MAKE A HIT WITH CAPT. LEROY PONTON DE ARCE THE FASHIONABLE MAIL AND EXPRESS AIR PILOT IS THERE ROOM FOR ANOTHER BUREAU?
WE GOT YOUR STUFF HERE ALL RIGHT, MAM, BUT SKILLY'S LANDING WASN'T SO HOT
OH MA! THE MOVING MAN LEFT AN ICE CHEST AT OUR HOUSE BY MISTAKE!
I KNEW DADA WELL SHOD BE TAIL-HEAVY WITH THAT PIANO OUT ON THE BACK.
EVEN OTTO GROW MAY GO IN FOR THE LIGHTER FORMS OF AIR TRUCKING
WHY NOT AERIAL HOUSE MOVING?
NOT DROHAN'S TRUCKING

A BEAUTIFUL AND TRUTHFUL POEM

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WAY back in Civil War days, a young man named Burroughs wrote some stanzas he called "Waiting."

It was his first and only attempt at poetry. For sixty years after that he wrote books—but no more poetry.

Having finished these verses, he read them to his friend, Walt Whitman. Had Whitman not liked them, the chances are that Burroughs would have torn them up, but thanks to Whitman we have one of the most beautiful, simple, truthful poems in the English language.

It starts off this way:

"Serene I fold my hands and wait,
Nor care for wind, nor tide, nor sea,
I rave no more 'gainst time or fate,
For lo! my own shall come to me."

That thought, "My own shall come to me," is the hub of Burroughs' philosophy. He became convinced as a young man that his own would come to him—if he hustled sufficiently—and events proved him to be absolutely correct!

Fame came to him, and fortune and friends and wisdom. Understanding came to him of everything that flies or runs or creeps. He could converse with birds and beasts. Nature returned his love of her and bestowed vision and peace and serenity upon him.

In a strenuous age, when the race to get ahead of the other fellow has ruined our digestions, John Burroughs stayed sweet and sane and calm. He waited for his own to come to him.

The most strenuous man in America was one of those who "came to him." Theodore Roosevelt, when he was President, did not command him to the White House. No, he steamed up the Hudson on the Mayflower to meet his beloved "John o' Birds" on his hilltop retreat.

The greatest inventive genius in the world, Thomas A. Edison, came to him. The railroad builder, E. H. Harriman, came to him, and carried him off to Alaska in a special train. The industrial wizard, Henry Ford, came to him.

These were his friends and playmates. They all came to "Slabsides," his bark-covered cabin, to sit at his feet and learn wisdom.

Everybody came. Children—hundreds of them! Girls from Vassar College. Literary men, thinkers, writers, lawyers, doctors, naturalists, college professors, bankers, farmhands—they were "his own" and they came to him from all over the world!

In these days when the pace of life is so swift and the game of grab so quick and bitter, we need the message of John Burroughs. I am reminded of this poem because just the other day I heard it sung by a new American tenor, Thomas Muir. For years poetry-lovers have had these verses of John Burroughs all to themselves.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

A LOVELY girl passed down the street today. People turned to look at her a second time, delighting in her beauty. She had pale coloring, small features and an unconscious figure, but she so skillfully dressed that she stamped herself on the memory of everyone who saw her.

She wore a beige coat, faintly pinkish in tint, which tied her hair, skin and eyes in a lovely harmony. The coat was so cut that the young body flowed in one supple, gentle line from neck to heel. Only one great orange chrysanthemum on her shoulder broke the coloring, tinting her lips with coral and making her pale skin glimmer like a rosy pearl.

Lovely! I wish you might have seen her. Yet twenty years ago that girl would have been considered plain and unattractive. She would have worn ugly, dull clothes, colored and cut exactly like the clothes worn by all her acquaintances—clothes which had no relationship whatever to her particular style. Her charm would have been completely obliterated in those clothes.

We've changed all that. We have learned to know our bodies in these last few years—learned how to clothe and groom ourselves so that every slightest beauty is expressed and enhanced. Our life is richer by consequence. We are becoming freed from the irritation and humiliation and bondage of ugliness. Girls who would once have been considered positively homely now have a piquant or exotic charm. Colorless girls take on an exquisite iridescence. We are freer and prouder and happier because we have learned how to make the most of our bodies.

How much more wonderful life is going to be when we have learned to make the most of our SELVES!

At present we're almost as ignorant as jungle savages of the hidden powers or charms in our own spirits. We know practically nothing of our own minds. We think uniformly thoughts; we adopt stupid ugly, meaningless habits and attitudes.

WE LOOK LIKE A MILLION DOLLARS BUT WE THINK AND ACT LIKE THIRTY CENTS.

So, in spite of our fine feathers, we fail to register.

Some day we will develope our personalities as we have developed our wardrobes. We will begin to think for ourselves. We will refuse to use shopworn, second-hand, unbecoming sentiments and opinions—we'll choose sentiments and opinions that REALLY express our own spirits. We will have habits that are cut to our own measure and that add to our power.

Life's going to be wonderful then, isn't it?

Why don't you start a life like that today?

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Proverbs are short sentences drawn from long and wise experience. —Cervantes.

The revelation of thought takes men out of servitude into freedom. —Emerson.

He who does not think too much of himself is much more esteemed than he imagines. —Goethe.

Trust men and they will be true to you; treat them greatly and they will show themselves great. —Emerson.

Conscience is a coward, and those faults it has not strength to prevent, it seldom has justice enough to accuse. —Goldsmith.

Freedom is only in the land of dreams and the beautiful only blooms in song.—Schiller.

Riches are deservedly despised by a man of honor because a well-sorted chest intercepts the truth. —Phaedrus.

By experience we find out a shorter way by a long wandering. Learning teacheth more in one year than experience in twenty. —Ascham.

ATMOSPHERE TAKES UP EARTH'S MOTION

By Garrett P. Serviss,
Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"Suppose two planes to take the air from a certain point, one going with the rotation of the earth, the other against it. After flying an hour should not the plane going directly opposite the earth's rotation be considerably farther from the starting point because of the high speed at which the earth rotates? —M. J. K.

IN spite of all the schools, books and professors, the relation of the earth to its atmosphere seems to remain a popular mystery.

The atmosphere rotates with the earth. Keep that fact in mind and the mystery vanishes.

If the atmosphere did not thus turn with the earth it would create a westward blowing wind traveling between seven and eight hundred miles an hour in the United States latitudes—and where should we be then!

The atmosphere has taken up the rotary motion of the earth, on which it rests, as the water in a whirling basin takes up the motion of the receptacle that carries it.

Suppose that instead of two airplanes, two automobiles should start from the same point, traveling at the same speed, one going west and the other east. Both would equally partake of the motion of the earth on which they rested. Consequently both would be carried eastward by the turning motion of the globe exactly as if they had remained at rest at the starting point. But each would have its own motion over the surface of the globe independent of the earth's rotation. At the end of say an hour one would be forty miles west of the starting point, and the other would be forty miles east of that point. In the meantime the earth's rotation would have carried the starting point itself one twenty-fourth of a rotation toward the east. But this would not affect the distance that the autos had traveled, each in its own direction from the starting point, for both of them would all the while have been carried eastward at the same rate as that point.
